FOE LOSES 20,000 MEN IN A DAY

London, June 13---Five divisions, 60,000 men, were employed by the Germans yesterday in their assaults between the Aisne River and the Villers-Cotterets forest, and 20,000 of them were lost, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Paris today.

By BERT FORD,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army at the Marne, June 13.—The Germans delivered a fierce counter attack against the Americans in the Belleau wood and Bouresches at dawn today, but it was broken up. The assault was preceded by heavy fire from Krupp guns. The attack was aimed to retake the positions the Germans had lost in the recent bitter fighting. The Americans stopped dead the German attack at Belleau wood and then made a counter attack. The combat zone at Bouresches was literally strewn with German dead. Our casualties were slight.

By ERNEST. P. ORR,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, June 13.—Swinging their counter-assaults from the left wing and center of the Montdidier-Oise battle line to the right flank, the French have driven the Germans back to the northern bank of the Matz river, the French War Office announced today.

On the Marne front the Germans delivered strong attacks against American positions in Bouresches and Belleau wood, but the assaults were all smashed.

Heavy losses were inflicted upon the Germans by both the French and Americans.

The Germans did not renew their attacks on the

DANIELS URGED TO TAKE GREAT HUB DOCK

Navy May Furnish Money to Complete Work Which Will Cost Three Millions

By International News Service.

Washington, June 13.—The acquisition by the United States Navy of the biggest drydock in the world moved nearer this afternoon when the Massachusetts Drydock Commission laid before Secretary Daniels two plans whereby the 1,200-foot dock, started by the State in Boston harbor some time ago, can be finished in time for use in the war.

The estimated cost was originally $2,000,000, and $1,000,000 worth of work was done on it. Then work ceased because of the scarcity of materials and labor. It is now believed the total cost will be $3,000,000, so greatly have prices advanced.

One plan outlined to Secretary Daniels is for the government to lend the Commonwealth enough money to complete the dock and then have the navy take it over at a $50,000 annual rental. The other is for the government to reimburse Massachusetts for the money spent and then complete the dock itself.

MYSTERIOUS MALADY IN BELFAST ARMS FACTORIES

London, June 13.—A mysterious malady has broken out among the workers in munitions factories in Belfast.

For several weeks epidemics of a strange disease have been breaking out through Europe. Spain has been the worst sufferer, but there were also outbreaks in the Scandinavian countries.

WAKEFIELD SERVICE FOR VICTIM OF WAR

Wakefield, June 13.—Memorial services for Henry J. Nacella, of the U. S. Aero service, who was killed at the front June 1, were held today at St. Joseph's Catholic Church. About 200 soldiers and sailors from Camp Plunkett marched to the church, headed by a band and platoon of police, and accompanied by from 500 Italians carrying the American and Italian flags.

MIDVALE WILL BUILD LARGE CALIBRE CANNON

Washington, June 13.—The present plant, greatly enlarged, of the Midvale Steel Company, is to be used for the manufacture of guns of large caliber for the United States, it was learned at the War Department this afternoon. Announcement recently was made that the company had agreed to build an Japanese ordnance plant for the government. Since that time, however, it became evident that the present plant, with expensive improvements, would prove ideal for the work.

DRAFT FROM 19 TO 45, PROVIDED IN NEW BILL

Washington, June 13.—Revision of the present draft ages to permit the drafting of men from nineteen to forty-five will be sought when the short session of Congress opens in December, according to members of the House Military Affairs committee this afternoon. A bill to this end already is prepared. It was learned this afternoon, but it will not be presented until a campaign of public education has been undertaken. Introduction of the bill at this time would be most unwise, according to its backers on the Military Affairs Committee.

"BLUE DEVILS" CHEERED BY THOUSANDS

Cheers from five thousand throats and a reception crowd such as Boston has seldom seen greeted the "Blue Devils," of French Chasseurs Alpins, on their arrival at 8:45 this morning at the South Station.

The famous fighters were given a thrilling welcome as they descended the steps of the Federal Express, and, bearing the gallant tri-colored flag of their country, marched down the enclosure roped off through the station, acclaimed by thousands of friendly Bostonians, wild with enthusiasm.

As the visitors formed their line and marched down the long trainshed the crowd shouted and cheered, the engines blew their whistles, bells rang and hats were waved in the air in such a demonstration as outclassed even that which greeted General Joffre.

The Blue Devils were clad in heavy

Widow Says Dentist Admitted Theft of Jewels

"I needed the money to go into business."

This, Mrs. Madge E. Wilbur testified today in the Superior Court before Judge Lawton, where Dr. Joseph Homer is on trial charged with stealing from her $17,500 worth of jewels, was what the doctor told her when she asked him why he had taken the gems.

Not only did he admit stealing the jewelry, according to her testimony, but he compelled her to write a letter authorizing him to sell it, and tore up sheet after sheet until he was satisfied with the way she had written it.

"Every word in it," she said, "was dictated by him."

Dr. Homer told her, she declared, that he got $1150 for the jewels, but would not tell her where or to whom he had disposed of them.

In reply to questions by Assistant District Attorney Gallagher, she told of insistent efforts on the part of Dr. Homer to get her to give him money which he needed, he said, to get a license to practice in New York.

"HAD FRIENDS WITH 'PULL.'"

A "Mrs. Judkins," he said according to Mrs. Wilbur's testimony, was among the influential persons who would assist him there; she had a

40 DISABLED SOLDIERS RETURNED FROM FRANCE

Washington, June 13.—Forty ill and wounded members of the American expeditionary forces were landed in the United States during the week ending June 7, Surgeon General Gorgas announced today. The number shows a decrease of 144 over the preceding week, when 184 were returned to be sent to the various army hospitals for treatment and physical reconstruction.

BULGARS SLAY 20,000 GREEK CAPTIVES

Washington, June 13.—The wholesale massacre by the Bulgars of all but 140 of 20,000 Greeks deported from eastern Macedonia was reported to the Greek legation today by the Bureau of Prisoners at Geneva, Switzerland.

Officials here believe that it is the purpose of Bulgaria to wipe out the Greek populations of captured territory in order that a firm grip on northern Greece may be retained after peace is declared.

Since the Greek deportations have taken place, it is pointed out that Macedonia is now inhabitated largely by Bulgarians, who will establish future allegiance to their country rather than to Greece.

ALSACE FOR PRUSSIA IN WAR SPOILS DIVISION

Geneva, June 13.—Negotiations have just been concluded among the states of the German empire, according to advices received today as a result of which Alsace has been promised to Prussia and Lorraine to Bavaria, while the other states will be repaid with Russian territory.

FRENCH DRIVE GERMANS BACK TO NORTH BANK OF THE RIVER MATZ

centre and left wing of the Montdidier battle line, but there was violent fighting on the northern end of the Aisne-Marne front. The Germans delivered attacks north of Villers-Cotterets, which gained them a footing in Coueuvres-et-Valsery and St. Pierre-Aigle.

(Coueuvres-et-Valsery lies eight miles southwest of Soissons and immediately south of Cutry. St. Pierre-Aigle is a mile south of Coueuvres-et-Valsery. Both lie at the junction of important highways.)

The text of the communique follows:

"On the front from Montdidier to Antheuil there have been no new German attacks. The French spent last night consolidating and linking up their newly won positions.

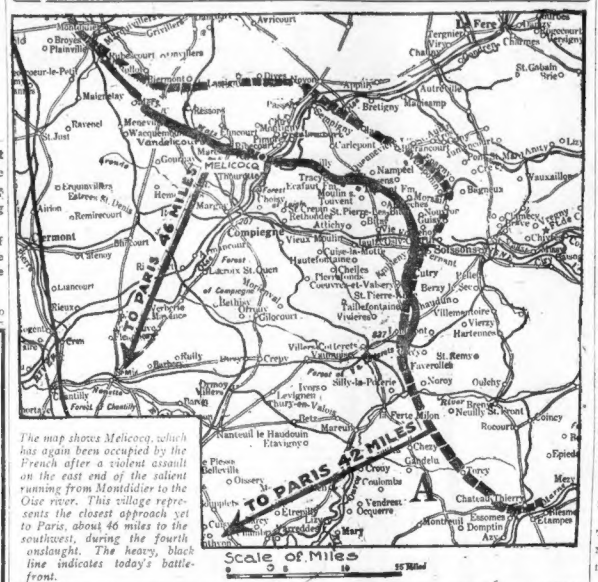
"On the right wing (eastern flank), the French threw the Germans back across the Matz River. The French occupied the heights of Croix Ricard and the village of Melicocq. One hundred German prisoners and many machine guns were captured.

"Very violent fighting is raging between the Aisne River and Villers-Cotterets. The Germans made some progress in the hollow east of Laversine and after heavy fighting succeeded in getting a foothold in Coeuvre and St. Pierre-Aigle.

(Laversine is seven and one-half miles southwest of Soissons.)

"On the line of Bouresches and Belleau wood the Germans made a strong attack, which was shattered by the Franco-American forces. All of the newly won gains were maintained by the allies and severe losses were inflicted on the Germans."

STRATEGIC GROUND RETAKEN BY FRENCH



The map shows Melicocq, which has again been occupied by the French after a violent assault on the east end of the salient running from Montdidier to the Oise river. This village represents the closest approach yet to Paris, about 46 miles to the southwest, during the fourth onslaught. The heavy, black line indicates today's battle-front.

British Straighten Out Lines in Flanders; French Are Victorious in Raid

London, June 13.—The British have improved their lines southwest of Merris and east of Dickebush (on the Flandern front), the War Office announced today. Prisoners were captured.

A successful daylight raid was carried out in the Arras sector yesterday and heavy casualties were inflicted upon the Germans.

The French have improved and strengthened their positions in the region of Ridgewood. They captured thirty prisoners.

The text of the War Office report follows:

"A successful daylight raid was carried out yesterday southeast of Arras. Heavy casualties were inflicted upon the enemy and a hostile trench mortar was captured, while two others were destroyed.

"During the night local operations were undertaken southwest of Merris, which proved successful. East of Dickebush and the former sector (Merris) our line has been advanced a short distance with but little cost to our forces. A number of prisoners were captured.

"The French improved their neighborhood of Ridge wood, capturing thirty prisoners."

Terrible Privations of Poor in Germany Are Fomenting Rebellion

By International News Service.

London, June 13.—Internal conditions in Germany are more truthfully expressed in private letters than in German newspapers, according to advices received here by the British wireless press.

Letters that have fallen into the hands of the allies show the burden of war is so heavy on the poor in Germany, despite denials in official statements, that they are both anxious for peace and angry with the militarists who are responsible.

"We hope that peace will come soon," says a man from Berlin, "for if the war lasts much longer the people here will make peace. Twice there have been small riots, but when the third comes it won't go so well with the rich people."

The writer told of the food shortage, saying that poor people could scarcely live.

Another man from central Germany wrote recently that if the rich class there had as little to eat as the poor people, the war would soon come to an end.

Hoists American Flag, Blown From Gun Deck as Torpedo Explodes

By International News Service.

Washington, June 13.—"They lived up to the traditions of the naval service."

This was the tribute paid by the Navy Department today to the armed guard of the steamship Tylor, sunk by a German submarine on May 1. The members of the crew stuck to their posts until the vessel was shattered and two lost their lives. It was with great difficulty that the others managed to get away.

Claude H. Ryan, commander of the guard, has been commended by Secretary Daniels for his courageous conduct during the engagement and for arranging for the return of the survivors of the crew to America. Ryan's home is in Winchester, Va.

The two members who lost their lives were: Howard Risher Smith, gunner's mate of the Pittsburgh, who was killed by one of the torpedoes; and Jesse C. Sampson, seaman of Fletcher, Okla., who hoisted the colors and was blown from the after gun platform by the force of the explosion.

Orders were sent out by the Department of Justice to United States attorneys throughout the country to report instances of disloyalty on the part of naturalized citizens.

Today's War Summary

By FRANK CHARLTON,
International News Service Cable Editor.

The Germans have lost more ground on the field of their latest offensive, the Montdidier-Oise River sector, but gained slightly on the Aisne-Marne front.

These are the chief developments of 24 hours:

1—The French, by a brilliant assault on the eastern flank of the Montdidier-Oise salient, drove the Germans back across the Matz River, recapturing important high ground around Croix Ricard and the village of Melicocq. (Melicocq represented the farthest advance of the Germans down the Oise valley and the Compiegne to Paris railway. It is only four and one-half miles from Compiegne, the chief local objective of the Germans.)

2—Too exhausted to attack, the German armies holding the western wing of the salient and the centre rested upon their arms, while the French utilized the breathing space to organize and link up their newly won positions.

3—Violent fighting rages along the northern half of the Aisne-Marne front, the Germans gaining a foothold in the villages of Coueuvres-et-Valery and St. Pierre-Aigle, respectively eight and nine miles southwest of Soissons. These villages derive their importance from the highways that join there.

4—Furious efforts were made by the Germans on the southern end of the Aisne-Marne front to dislodge the Americans from Belleau wood and Bouresches (northwest of Chateau Thierry), but the assaults broke down under terrific gunfire of the Americans and the French who were fighting with them. The Germans did not gain an inch of ground.

The fifth day of the new German offensive finds it wrecked upon the rocks of French resistance. Although the Germans have made tremendous sacrifices, using up men with utter recklessness, they have gained only a few miles, while they stand face to face with allied positions which are even stronger than the ones previously attacked.

The latest German drive has reached the phase of the earlier three. Weary, and faced by determined troops, the Germans have come to a standstill just as they did in Picardy, in Flanders and on the Marne.

Nothing of importance has taken place in the northern battle areas.

This was the eighty-fifth day of the German grand offensive.

Wedding Rings at STOWELL'S

Starting with the early Egyptians the ring has always been the sacred symbol of marriage. In modern times a severe gold band has been the accepted token. Fashion has become weary of conveying so little sentiment in the appearance and design of the wedding ring. The decorated ring is now universally accepted—thus giving a wide choice for the expression of personal taste and individuality.

We have on display a great variety of decorated wedding rings. The Orange Blossom design is the most appropriate. Other varieties are the Myrtle, Engraved Scroll and Lafayette designs—the last, decorated with stars, is in great favor for Military Weddings.

URGE REFORM CAMPAIGN TO SAVE GIRLS TAKEN IN VICE CRUSADE

APPEAL TO WOMEN TO HELP

Mrs. Stevens, Strongly for Protection of Men in Uniforms, Tells the Other Side

Ninety-five girls in two days, 61 in the last twenty-four hours, have been rounded up by the police in their campaign against vice to protect young men in uniforms.

These girls, many of them under eighteen years of age, appeared in court today. They will in the normal course of events be sent to Sherborn Reformatory directly or given suspended sentences there or at some other penal institution.

While the soldiers and sailors are being protected, who is going to protect these girls? Prison sentences develop girls who are not fundamentally bad into criminals.

That is recognized by every reformer who has given any time or serious thought to the question. It is right to save the soldiers; but is it right in doing so to wreck these girls' lives?

These questions are put to reformers by Mrs. Susan E. Stevens, president of the Women's Homestead Association. In the present anti-vice crusade she sees a real opportunity for reformers to do some genuinely constructive service.

"Don't send them back to their old life, hardened and emboldened by a prison term," she pleads. "Rescue them before it is too late!"

Mrs. Stevens thus expresses her views on the subject and suggests what she believes is a real remedy:

By MRS. SUSAN E. STEVENS.
President of the Women's Homestead Association.

While the city must be kept safe for the young soldiers, I believe that mere arresting of girl offenders is not the solution of the difficulty. Sending these girls to Lancaster or Sherborn means afterwards sending the girls back to their old life.

It would be much better to put them under observation at the Psychopathic Hospital. They are not real criminals, but by the method we are now pursuing we are making them so.

I have written to this effect to Mayor Peters, calling his attention to what seems to me to be a serious defect in our treatment of these cases.

The girls are carried away with the sight of the uniform. Some one has called the disease "Uniformitis."

This opens an opportunity for another type of treatment than merely punishing the girls. These girls have come from homes which have in some degree been broken up. It is the changes which the war has forced upon them. Many homes are so changed that the girls are in a state of doubt what to do and easily fall a prey to evil.

NEED RIGHT ATMOSPHERE

I know of a social worker who has taken these girls from penal institutions and given them work to do and home life to be surrounded with. If these reformers would wake up to the necessity of getting these girls into an atmosphere where they would feel that someone is trying to make them better and see conditions in a better sight, it would create a condition of reform in them.

But you are not going to reform these girls by sentencing them to a prison life. You are making them worse by sending them there and when they have served their time, they are unmistakably going back to their former life.

The whole condition of vice is brought about by a defective system of reform. We see evil and then we have only corrective, not correcting it by making criminals of the offenders.

Get these girls into homes under kind influence and they will often yield to better conceptions of duty. But you say who is going to do this?

I know of one person who is doing it.

Others can follow this up in the days when the question of servants in the home life is a trying one.

URGES NEW METHODS.

These girls, in the generality of cases, are not fundamentally bad.

They are made to appear so by our peculiar conditions.

Above everything else, I beg of every social worker to appeal to some other class than those sending the girls to prisons.

There may be a few in the number arrested deserving of this punishment, but I am free to say that there are other places, if individuals would awaken to the importance of the subject, where they could be sent for a time on probation, and under normal conditions they would soon improve themselves worthy of such consideration.

But I say it again—don't make criminals out of them.

Police Co-operate With Army and Navy Officials in Big Vice Crusade

By SYBIL WARNE.

To make Boston a decent place to live in and morally safe, especially for our soldiers and sailors, is the object of the vice crusade that the police are now carrying on in co-operation with the army and navy officials.

That such a crusade is necessary anyone who has studied the conditions will affirm, and the result of two round-ups go to show that the lurking danger cannot be underestimated.

According to Superintendent of Police Michael J. Crowley, the task of getting rid of the menace to the health and morals of society is a big one.

"We cannot shut the sailors and soldiers up," said the superintendent. "That would be one way of getting around it. And we can't prevent them from meeting their friends in public places. All that we can do is to arrest those whose actions appear to be suspicious, and who can be convicted for some misdemeanor, such as vagrancy or disorderly conduct.

"All of our men have their instructions, and strict watch is being kept in places where we suspect bad conditions.

"Bad conditions, as I called them, aren't really any worse though, now, than they were before the war. It is just that we are beginning to realize the need of coping with them that this crusade has been taken up, and that it is being so widely advocated all through the country. We must protect our soldiers. To be efficient they need perfect health, and it is the men in the service that are in the greatest danger.

"There are places where the men in uniform congregate—places of amusement, war service shops, and other organizations that are doing more than we realize to get rid of immoral conditions. But there are men who habitually take their stand on the street corners and in groups in the parks, and it is these men that we must protect against themselves as much as anything. For we cannot blame the women entirely."

About half of the women that were taken in the first round-up were young girls, who probably had never intended any offence. These girls, as the superintendent pointed out, cannot be arrested. They can only be turned over to their parents, who ought to be more thoroughly aware of what their daughters are doing when they are out late, and on whom more than a small share of the children's wrongdoings can be laid.

DECLARES GUYNEMER GREATEST HERO OF WAR

New York, June 13.—Declaring that Guynemer, the late French Ace, with his score of victories was the greatest hero of the war, David I. Walsh, formerly Governor of Massachusetts, in a speech to the graduating class of Fordham University, exhorted them to emulate Guynemer's example.

"Be Guynemers," he said, "inspired with love of service, with a determination to succeed and to overcome the natural difficulties of life. The greatest asset of our country is her manhood. Men, this is you day, your hour."

Provost Marshal General Crowder has informed the Bureau of Navigation that men who registered on June 5 may enroll in the Naval Reserve upon securing the usual certificates from their Local Boards; the reason being that inasmuch as new registrants have not been classified, they are not within the current quota and until classification, there is no reason why such releases should not be given upon request.

Aided by Mme. Petrova, who devoted her best efforts to the sale of War Savings Stamps on the Common, and by Mrs. Philip L. Saltonstall and her corps of "majors," the War Savings Stamp campaign in Boston is getting a tremendous boost.

Mme. Petrova was aided by a group of young society women, including Mrs. Carlyle Emery, Miss Marian Sprague, Mrs. H. L. Sigourney, Mrs. William Merrill, Mrs. Oliver Turner and the Misses Marjorie Blake, Pauline Fenno and Katharine Register.

A total of 26,800 new pledges in the June drive for one million pledges for Stamps have been reported in the last twenty-four hours at headquarters from various parts of the Commonwealth.

Less than half of the State, however, was represented in the returns. Important developments have delayed the intensive canvass until the week of the 24th.

"We are too busy soliciting and securing pledges to stop to figure up total returns now," is the word from two of the largest towns—one in Norfolk and one in Middlesex County.

3 PLEDGES FROM ONE HOUSE.

The percentage of success in the canvass is very high. Mrs. William Edmunds, the woman chairman for Wellesley, reports nine pledges secured from one house.

The Wellesley campaign is being carried on in a most thorough-going fashion by the women solicitors.

"Every house should have a pennant is the motto of the town committee, and every solicitor writes on the pledge card where there is a refusal, the fact of the rejection, and notes on the back the reasons assigned for this.

The greatest individual record for the day was 150 pledges, secured in two hours by Mrs. Mary Fallon of No. 39 Sherman street, Roxbury, working under the Boston major for that district.

In Somerville is is reported 1,000 women at work in very nook and corner of the city. The great force having been enlisted by the Mayor and sent out from a mass meeting at which the city was represented in a most remarkable fashion.

Cambridge reported eleven ward captains with seventy-five women working under each one, and a return in some section of a thousand pledges an hour. Mrs. E. W. Quinn, wife of the Mayor, is woman chairman.

75 PLEDGES A DAY.

Mrs. George Hutchins, woman's chairman for Everett, reports seventy-five pledges a day as the highest rate yet reached by a woman's committee.

Reading reports nearly 25 per cent. of the quota already secured.

In Chicopee a committee of 100 women began work to secure 8,000 pledges, and expect to report 50 per cent. by Saturday night. The biggest single pledge came from the seniors of Chicopee High School, who voted to invest the profits of their senior play in War Savings Stamps.

Watertown, where Mrs. Edward McKrennon is chairman, reports that one woman canvasser pledged every woman she approached except two. Watertown's total returns to last night were 572.

Miss Emma Stephens, now singing at Keith's, spoke today at the noon meeting on Boston Common in behalf of the drive, under the auspices of the Women's War Savings Service.

RECEIVES INSTRUCTIONS ABOUT ANTI-LOAFING LAW

Milford, June 13.—Judge Williams, chairman of Division 18 draft board, has received orders from the office of Adjutant General Stevens in Boston with relation to the operation of the new anti-loafing law. Chief of Police Murphy will be directed to go busy in Milford as soon as the order becomes operative.

378 PLANES AT FRONT FOR 1,746 FLIERS

By GUY CARPENTER
Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

Washington, June 13.—Charles Evans Hughes, it was disclosed today, has extended his investigations of the work of the Aircraft Production Board. His findings will not only include a report on the charges that irregularities were permitted in the outlay of funds, but will give to the nation a comprehensive statement of the reasons for the board's failure to create a large number of planes for use abroad. It is understood the extension of the scope of the investigation is undertaken with the approval of President Wilson.

From evidence bearing upon the efforts of the Signal Corps to get fronts held by General Pershing's men adequate air defence, it has been brought out that there are now on the front 378 airplanes bearing the American insignia. These planes are being used by 126 American aviators, who constitute seven squadrons. Few of the planes are of American manufacture.

1,746 AVIATORS IN FRANCE.

There are now 1,746 American aviators in France. A large share of this number are ready to go into the air against the enemy, but only 126 have been provided with equipment. There is an equal number of observers, and 26,267 enlisted men to act as mechanicians and airdrome men are at work completing the flying fields to be used by the American forces.

There are in this country today 3,467 trained aviators and 4,922 observers and non-flying officers awaiting orders to proceed to France. The enlisted men, many of whom have finished their mechanical training at the flying schools in this country, total 89,001.

At the present time there are about 3,294 men being trained as aviators at the flying schools, and 3,393 at the ground or preparatory schools. About 4,236 men, passed by the examining boards, are awaiting an opportunity to enter the ground schools. There are 1,038 men who are taking advanced training courses in this country, perfecting themselves in pursuit, bombing or observation work. About 2,580 Americans are being trained in schools in France, England, Italy and Egypt.

THOUSANDS ORDERED.

From records brought up to date two weeks ago it appears that the Aircraft Board ordered 6,300 elementary planes, 2,180 advanced training planes and 11,000 combat planes. The entire program called for 19,500 for elementary planes, 6,693 for advanced planes and 27,340 for combat planes. The program also included orders for 35,913 propellers, 1,977 balloons, 842,735 bombs and thousands of machine guns.

In connection with the use of machine guns it is known that General Pershing recently advised that steps be take at once by the American designers to perfect a plane which would be able to meet in combat a German airplane having three guns mounted to shoot through its propeller and three guns mounted for use on the sides and rear.

It has also developed that much time and effort is being expended in an effort to perfect a "hovering" machine for the use of observers and bombers.

HUN PRISONERS ARE AMAZED BY U.S. FIGHTERS

By BERT FORD,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army on the Marne, June 12 (7 p. m.)—German prisoners captured in the last round-up made by the Americans were unanimous in their testimony that Germany is making a supreme effort to win the war by Fall. They are instructing their troops and basing all their plans on this end.

It was also admitted that the commanding officers address them from time to time, saying that it was preferable to die fighting, as they would be tortured if captured by the Americans. The prisoners to a man expressed gratitude over the treatment accorded them and delight at being out of the war.

Four hundred and forty-nine prisoners were taken by the American marines in the fighting Tuesday, including the largest number of enemy prisoners bagged by the United States army since the Civil War. It brings the total of prisoners nearly to 900.

Many of the prisoners had chunks of war bread tied to their belts by strings. The bread was covered with dirt and dust, but the captives clung to it as though it were a treasure. One youngster had a piece of towel tied around his foot for a sock. The uniforms were old. Many of the prisoners were young.

One of them with a blonde mustach' spoke good English. He said he once worked as a waiter in the Kaiser Hotel near Black Friar Inn, London. He wanted to go to the United States, but was prevented by the war. He intends to go anyhow at his first opportunity, he said. Others joined him in that determination. All were sick of war. They refused to say which side they thought would win, but agreed the conflict would hardly last another year. The one-time waiter was asked if the Germans still thought the Americans were amateur soldiers, as they had been told by German propagandists. He laughed as he replied:

"After last week's fighting! My God, we know now that the Americans can fight like hell!"

The entire group of prisoners smiled their assent to this emphatic tribute.

DRIVE TO ENLIST NOVA SCOTIANS IN BAY STATE

A drive will be put under way at once to enlist a number of Nova Scotians living in and near Boston to fill the depot brigades in Nova Scotia, as a result of the departure of a number of troops for France in the last few weeks. Colonel W. E. Thompson, assistant adjutant general and acting commandant of the troops at Halifax, has come to the British and Canadian Recruiting Mission in this city to further the campaign. He says that all Canadians from eighteen to forty years of age will be taken by draft eventually if they do not enlist.

REST CURE DOES NOT APPEAL TO MRS. THORNE

Wife of Missing Banker Tells of Her Straitjacket Experiences in Bellevue Hospital

By MARJERY REX.

New York, June 13.—The latest chapter in the marital affairs of the young Joel Thornes, which had its culmination before Supreme Court Justice Giegerich Tuesday, when the young and beautiful wife of the missing millionaire won her freedom from Bellevue, where she had been under observation since the night of June 5, was just as full of thrills as the opening chapter, when Mrs. Mary Casey Thorne startled society six weeks ago by sending out "S. O. S." calls for her absent husband.

Since her statement to the press regarding her futile attempts to find her husband, missing since October 6, 1917, the public has heard little of the young woman until the report of her detention in Bellevue and her speedy discharge when she took the stand in her own behalf in Justice Giegerich's court.

TELLS OF HER EXPERIENCES.

Looking little the worse for her unusual experience, Mrs. Thorne consented to see me at her home, No. 9 East Seventy-sixth street. Her little son, Joel, Jr., played around the library while we talked, and called on his mother frequently to adjust his toys or to play with him. He is a bright, handsome little boy and entirely devoted to his Junonesque mamma. When Mrs. Thorne started to tell of her experiences in Bellevue the maid took "Junior," as he is lovingly called, to his playroom at the top of the house.

After enthusiastically exclaiming on the beauty of my a home again, Mrs. Thorne began:

"When I arrived at Bellevue, with the careful chaperonage of Dr. Seth M. Milliken, driven there in his private car, and by his chauffeur, presumably, he told me I was to remain there for a period of several days in order that I might secure much needed rest after the troubles and trials I had undergone in my futile search for my husband.

"The greatest night I was there I was put in a straitjacket. To me the experience was the least, was unique. I am fairly good at solving problems and the knots in the straitjacket offered an interesting diversion. I set to work and decided that this was one 'knotty' problem I could unravel by sheer patience, but I finally was able to wind up the long ends of the straps that had bound me, and carefully placed them under my mattress. To say the nurse was surprised when she found me the next morning with my arms resting above my head is to put it mildly.

MET HER 'SUBJECTS.'

"Although I was literally 'railroaded' into Bellevue and subjected to the most humiliating sort of experiences—many of those who sent me there expected would 'break my nerve,' to use a slang phrase of the day—it was not all unpleasant by episode. You see I had taught mental deficiencies and specialized in abnormal psychology under Dr. Thorndike of Columbia University, and all the cases that were in the room with me were but 'subjects' in a study I knew a great deal about.

"My most 'subject' was a woman who decided that her husband was in love with a laundress in Bellevue; another was in love with a picture of a Russian general with many medals strung across his breast. She, poor soul, raved practically all night, and about 2 a. m. she came over to my bed and implored me to be kind to her. It was a bit spooky, I grant you, but I called the night nurse and tried to forget her mourning. These experiences, however, were becoming ordinary, because I had been in a room next to a woman who went violently insane in the wee hours, when I was a prisoner in I—a fellow patient—helped the nurse to calm her. I sympathized with her and talked quietly to her until her poor over-excited brain rested.

"On this occasion my erstwhile companions were sent as insane patients to Central Islip.

"I realize that I did not play the game at all as they wanted me to. I refused to scream and answer in very quietness seemed to awe them.

"One could see that I was not be ironical, but it was hardly what I should call in the words of Dr. Milliken a rest cure."

Hearst Ownership Champion, Says Hylan

By International News Service

Newburgh, N. Y., June 13.—In an interview after his address on municipal ownership here last night Mayor Hylan said:

"The greatest champion of municipal ownership that this State or country has ever had is William Randolph Hearst, to whose persisting and untiring efforts in behalf of the rights of the people the success of municipal ownership must be credited.

"If the next Legislature would place upon the statute books a bill as advocated by the champions of municipal ownership—Hearst, Wagner and Donohue—it would give the municipalities of this State not only an opportunity to get better service, but to materially increase their revenue, as has been experienced in San Francisco and other cities. This will solve the problem and end the ever-increasing tax upon property and the industries of the State.

"The revenue derived from public utilities such as rapid transit, gas, electricity, etc., in many instances would almost pay the administrative expense of many of our municipalities, which would give the workingman an opportunity to own his home without being eaten up with taxation."

SUGAR LIMIT 3 LBS. A MONTH PER PERSON

Beginning today no retailer will be permitted to sell more than two pounds of sugar to any one person, and is to satisfy himself that the purchaser is not getting a total quantity in excess of three pounds per person per month. The order comes from State Food Administrator Henry B. Endicott, who makes it clear that if the individual seeks to evade this rule by duplicate purchases elsewhere that person's entire sugar supply will be cut off.

The same rule was that purchases might be made in five-pound lots. The new order also makes it clear that for preserving purposes a single purchaser may secure not more than twenty-five pounds, and that a second purchase of that amount can be secured only on the authority of the State or County Administrator.

ARMY OFFICERS INDORSE FREE RIDE IDEA

Join With Others in Approving American's Plan to Aid Soldiers

The stand taken by the AMERICAN for free trolley rides for soldiers and sailors is meeting universal commendation.

Army officers, as well as officials of patriotic societies, approve the idea that the enlisted men should be given free rides by all the trolley companies the financial condition of which permits the extension of the privilege.

COLONEL MARCH B. STEWART, Chief of Staff of the Seventy-sixth Division at Camp Devens: If the courtesy of allowing enlisted men to ride free of charge on the street railways is extended to the soldiers, I know it will be appreciated by them. I realize there are many obstacles standing in the way of such a plan, but if it is put into effect it should be welcomed by the men.

MAJOR GEORGE M. PEEK, Adjutant of the 76th Division at Camp Devens: The idea of allowing enlisted men to ride free on street railways is, without question, a good one, provided these railways are earning enough money to permit them to do so without hurting the roads. The plan probably could be put into effect in the larger cities more easily than in the smaller cities and towns. This idea is not new. It has been done before in other parts of the country. It was in operation in Virginia at the time of the Spanish-American war, and has my heartiest indorsement, wherever it is possible to put it into effect without crippling the railways at a disadvantage.

I believe in the agitation of this matter by the Boston AMERICAN. Let us get both sides. The expenses are comparatively small up for a great many in war service. Why not give enlisted men the right to ride free for certain distances in the cities? If they can't give the men a whole loaf, let them give a half. Now is something of this kind anyway for enlisted men and do it quick.

BARBER GIVES RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR

Tells How to Make a Home-Made Gray Hair Remedy.

Mr. A. E. O'Brien, who has been a barber in New York City for many years, made the following statement: "Gray, streaked or faded hair can be immediately made black, brown or light brown, whichever shade you desire, by the use of the following remedy that you can make at home:

"Merely get a small box of Orlex powder at any drug store. It costs very little and no extras to buy. Dissolve it in water and comb it through the hair. Full directions for mixing and use come in each box.

"You need not hesitate to use Orlex, as a $100.00 gold bond comes in each box guaranteeing the user that Orlex powder does not contain silver, lead, zinc, sulphur, mercury, aniline, coal-tar products or their derivatives.

"It does not rub off, is not sticky or gummy and leaves the hair fluffy. It will make a gray haired person look twenty years younger."—Advertisement.

Labor Men Call on Wilson to Save Mooney's Life

By International News Service.

St. Paul, Minn., June 13.—In resolutions presented to the American Federation of Labor, President Wilson was called upon to use the power of veto to stay the execution of Thomas J. Mooney, recently convicted of the "preparedness bomb parade" murders in San Francisco last year. The resolutions were signed by John P. Frey, member of the Labor Commission sent to Europe; Andrew Furoseth, Paul Scharrenburg, and a number of others.

"Execution of the sentence of death would create the belief that justice can no longer be secured through the orderly process of some of our courts," declared a part of the resolutions. They continue that the President should at all hazard, stop the hanging, "unless a fair trial shall have determined his guilt."

The resolutions were referred to a committee.

"JAZZ BALL" TO RAISE FUNDS FOR I CO.

Prize Drill by "Boston's Own" Will Feature Big Military Event at Arena

I Company is Boston's Own.

I Company is "broke"

Every other company in the 301st Regiment at Camp Devens has a company fund of from $2,000 to $7,500. Every other company has run a dance to put money into its fund. Every other company has enough in its coffers to take care of itself when it goes to France.

I Company's fund consists chiefly of empty space. It's the only company of the whole regiment which hasn't a red cent to its name.

But I Company doesn't want to be broke. It wants to go to France with a company fund as strong as any in the Regiment.

JAZZIEST BALL OF SEASON.

Which explains why I Company is running a big military jazz ball at the Boston Arena Saturday evening, June 29th. It's going to be the big-gest, jazziest ball of the season if Sergeant Eddie Mack, chairman of the ball committee, has his way.

Sergeant Mack put in a long hard day on preliminary preparations. He engaged the Arena, ordered printing, and in brief started the ball rolling.

"Every other company in the 301st has a big fund," says Sergt. Mack, "and if Boston patronizes the ball I Company, 'Boston's Own,' will have a still bigger one."

I Company will deliver the goods so far as the ball is concerned.

It's up to Boston to do the rest.

Don't let I Company go broke to France!

"Boston's Own." like every other company in the regiment, may be sent to France before the ball takes place. Sergeant Mack has provided for that possibility.

CIVILIAN COMMITTEE.

Eddie Mack says Ex-Governor David I. Walsh, Miss Dorothy Forbes, Miah Murray, Mrs. Archibald Blanchard and Jacob Bursey have volunteered to act as a civilian committee.

If I Company is "over there" when the ball takes place this committee will run the ball. And the money will be sent to I Company in France.

Every member of the company is busy thinking up features for the ball. Among the many things on the program will be the first prize drill ever given in Boston by a regiment of draftees. I Company's four platoons are going to compete, and Boston will have a chance to see its own company at its best. The drill will be worth the price of admittance.

I Company is willing to drill itself into finances.

Attention, Boston! Mann the pocketbook! Load the company fund of "Boston's Own!" Dance jazz and be merry! And

I Company won't go broke to France!

HERE'S A GOOD CHANCE TO HELP OUT UNCLE SAM

Announcement is made by the United States Civil Service Commission that open competitive examinations will be held for an inspector of construction (male) for the ordnance department at large, senior and junior cost accountants (male and female), steel and machine-plant clerks, munition loading clerk, powder plant clerk, balance of stores clerk, supervising inspector of ordnance material (male), inspector of ordnance material (male), assistant inspector of ordnance material (male), assistant gauge checker (male), and an index and catalogue clerk. NOVEL FEATURES MARK NAVY DAY PROGRAM

Swimming Instructor Harry Alpert of the Harvard Radio School showing how to resuscitate a drowning man. He will demonstrate this method at the big Navy Day carnival in the Charles River basin, June 29.

Plans for Navy Day, June 29, when the men and women of the First Naval District, on orders from Rear Admiral Spencer S. Wood and Captain William R. Rush, are to hold a monster athletic carnival in the Charles River Basin, are going forward with a rush.

Already the program of events has been announced by the carnival committee, appointed to handle the affairs of the pageant.

Lieutenant Chapman of the Metropolitan Police, who is enthusiastic about the affair, is making ready all the resources of the police to help forward the success of the carnival.

POLICE ROOTING FOR CARNIVAL.

Through the co-operation of the police many helpful suggestions have been received by Lieutenant Leon M. Little, chairman of the carnival committee, because of the experience of Lieutenant Chapman, Superintendent West and the officers of the Metropolitan police, who have conducted other athletic events in the Basin in the past.

All the members of the police force are rooters for the carnival, knowing, as they do, how perfect a setting it will have in the basin of which they are so proud.

"Look at it," said Lieutenant Chapman as he stood in the window of the police station at the Charles River dam and pointed out across the expanse of water between the bridges. "There isn't a similar basin in the world that compares with it."

He pointed out to a photographic enlargement which hangs on the wall of a basin which is the boast of a German city. "Nothing like it," said the lieutenant. "We have here the finest place in the world for this sort of thing and I hope and believe that this carnival will popularize the river. Half the people in Boston do not realize what a perfect place we have here."

The prophesy of Lieutenant Chapman is likely to come true, for if the day is fine several hundred thousand people will undoubtedly throng the Esplanade and the Cambridge side on Navy Day.

BIG SWIMMING RACE.

One event alone, the big swimming race, will draw thousands of people to see the largest contest of this kind ever held in the United States.

The yeowomen's boat races will also attract many people, and, in anticipation of this, crews of yeogirls are spending much time rowing on the Charles to get in trim for the big race.

Another number on the program, which will bring all lovers of sailing will be the sailing race with regulation Navy rig, which will be contested for by a boat crew from each of the stations of the First Naval District. This race, which will give the men of the Navy a chance to show their seamanship, will make a pretty sight as the white sails flit across the waters of the Charles, which have long been strangers to sailing boats.

GIRL FOUND BOUND, ADMITS SHE DID IT

New York, June 13.—Anna Butler, fourteen, was found early today bound hand and foot in the railroad yards at 132nd street and Brook place, the Bronx.

When found, the police say, she was feigning unconsciousness, and so well did she play the part that even a doctor who was summoned was deceived.

She told her mother:

"You know, mamma, how fond I am of baby Billie, and I thought if I could only get into the pictures like some of the girls who play in train wrecks that I could earn enough money to take you and Billie into the country for a rest."

The girl admitted tying herself and lying down where she was found.

1 KILLED IN AUTO CRASH; ANOTHER BADLY HURT

Driver of Big Car in Cambridge Is Held on Drunkenness Charge

After putting his wife and two children on board a street car, because engine trouble had developed with his automobile, John C. Meehan was instantly killed in a crash with a big touring car on Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, near the Technology building, early today.

With Meehan was his brother-in-law, Patrick McCarron, who was seriously injured and is now on the danger list at the Cambridge Relief Hospital.

Both families live at 14 Cherry street, West Somerville.

The other auto was driven by Fred Van Stone of Ernst street, Jamaica Plain, who is charged with operating a car while under the influence of liquor. A companion taken with Stone was locked up on the charge of drunkenness.

Meehan, with his family and his brother-in-law, had been driving, when the engine went wrong, and after considerable delay the men decided to send Mrs. Meehan and the children home by trolley car.

Meehan and McCarron had driven hardly 200 yards when the big car driven by Stone crashed into the smaller one, with fatal results.

BURRAGE HID COPPER DEAL FROM ROSS

Master Finds for Expert Who Sued Boston Magnate for Profits in Guggenheim Sale

Albert C. Burrage, the copper magnate, concealed from Louis A. Ross, mine explorer, a transaction with the Guggenheims, Ross claims, which netted Burrage $25,000,000, of which Ross should have received a greater part than he did, is the finding of Thomas W. Proctor, master in Ross' suit against Burrage.

Mr. Proctor, appointed by Judge Braley of the Supreme Court as master filed his report today.

This celebrated case, in which millions are involved, has dragged along since 1912.

On September 12, 1910, an agreement was made between Ross and Burrage whereby the former was to investigate mining properties in Chile and Peru, for which he was to be paid $500 a month and expenses and receive five per cent. of the profits.

Among the valuable properties brought to Burrage's notice by Ross were the Chuquicamata mines in Chile, which later passed into the hands of the Guggenheims of New York. Whether this property was included in the agreement was the point at issue in the suit brought by Ross.

Mr. Burrage conveyed all his rights in these mines to the Chile Corporation Company, controlled by the Guggenheims, and received in return $45,819.73, representing expenses incurred by Ross, and also 5,000 shares of the common stock of the company. At the time of the deal, the Guggenheims were given to believe by Burrage that the value of the properties was far in excess of $20,000,000.

Later the Chile Copper Co. of Delaware was formed, with a capital of $95,000,000, afterwards increased to $110,000,000. Of the capital stock issued by this company, Burrage received 1,000,000 shares, which Ross believed to have been worth $25,000,000.

Ross consented in April, 1912, to take $100,000 in settlement for his services, not having at that time knowledge of the previous transactions between Burrage and the Guggenheims on the transfer of the mines. He claims that is entitled to $1,000,000 under the agreement, instead of the $100,000 which he accepted.

ROBBED ONCE; WOMAN HAS FLATIRON READY

Barrington, R. I., June 13.—Mrs. Parker Nichols, who was bound, beaten and gagged about a month ago by a burglar who robbed her of $36, was ready for another burglar, who made a visit to her home. She heard someone at the door, evidently trying to gain entrance, at about 1 o'clock in the morning. She promptly hurled two flatirons at the door, and the racket they made scared the would-be housebreaker away.

Now I just tumble them into the pure suds!"

"THOSE little odd things that soil so quickly—what a nightmare they always used to be! Out of three sets of washable satin collars and cuffs I was fortunate to have one pair clean enough to wear! The dainty little accessories I longed to buy were such a bother to keep clean!

"But now that I have discovered Lux, I buy all the little odd things I want! I never think twice about washing them. Now I just tumble them into the pure rich suds the moment they are soiled. Then I swish them about, press the suds through them again and again—and out they come clean and fresh as the day I bought them!"

Lux will clean your very daintiest things without rubbing. It is the modern form of soap—delicate flakes which whip up into a wonderful lather. Your grocer, druggist or department store has Lux.—Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

How to Wash Silk Stockings.

Dissolve a tablespoonful of Lux in half a basinful of boiling or very hot water and whisk into a thick lather. Add cold water to make milk luke-warm. Wash quickly, squeezing the suds through the stockings. Do not rub. Rinse three times in luke-warm water. Squeeze the water out. Do not twist. Dry in the shade. When nearly dry press with a warm iron, over a hot one.

Use Lux for anything that pure water alone won't injure.

It was decided further to encourage annual holidays of Parisians in the country. WHY SOCIETY WOMEN WASH THEIR OWN HAIR

They do, not because it is a fad, but because they wish to obtain the greatest possible hair beauty and be sure they are not using anything harmful. They have found that in washing the hair it is never wise to use a makeshift, but is always advisable to use a preparation made for shampooing only. Many of our friends say they get the best results from a simple home-made Canthrox mixture. You can use this at a cost of about 3 cents a shampoo by getting some Canthrox from your druggist and dissolving a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water. This makes enough shampoo liquid to apply to all the hair instead of just the top of the head, as with most preparations. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear in the rinsing water. Your hair will be so fluffy that it will look much heavier than it is. Its luster and softness will also delight you.—Advertisement.

DISCUSS LABOR NEEDS IN WAR PRODUCTION

Bay State Represented at Important Conference Affecting Farmers

By THOMAS F. PHELAN,
(United States Farm Labor Agent.)

A three-day "War Labor Conference," in which the farmers of the country are interested, opened today in Washington, D. C., with William A. Wilson, secretary of labor, as the principal speaker at the first session.

Massachusetts is represented at the conference by Colonel William A. Gaston, Federal director of the Public Reserve for this State; Edward F. McGrady, State supervisor of the United States Employment Service, and H. S. Stevens, district superintendent of the Federal labor agency.

The conference is the most important of its kind ever held in this country. The labor needs in war production and the plans of the Government for mobilizing and distributing workers are being thoroughly discussed.

The subjects of skilled labor, common labor and farm labor were taken up separately, and methods of increasing the present supply considered. General discussion among the field executives of the service will give each official a more intimate knowledge of the situation and problems of other sections.

Edward F. McGrady, who was recently appointed to look after the man-power of this State, voiced the sentiments of the labor organizations of Massachusetts on matters concerning the promotion of Federal employment offices in all parts of the country. He is a former head of the Boston Central Labor Union.

Mr. Gaston responds for the Public Reserve of Massachusetts, Mr. Stevens tells of the success of the farm labor propaganda in the New England States.

ASK FOR HALF FARES.

The Department of Labor, after consultation with the Department of Agriculture, has asked the Director-General of Railroads to grant half fares to agricultural workers mobilized for distribution by the United States Employment Service, with the co-operation of the latter department's field force.

Only through cheaper transportation, it is believed, can the farmers of the country be supplied with the maximum labor available for agriculture.

There are thousands of former farm hands in the cities who are ready to return to their former calling, having been attracted by the increased wages offered by farmers.

With the supply of regular farm hands depleted, these men are urgently needed. The greatest part of them, however, it is believed cannot be returned through the United States Employment Service unless they are given cheaper transportation. They cannot afford, in most instances, to pay full fare, while reduced rates would prove an additional inducement to those who might be able to do so.

Farmers will not, usually because they cannot, pay in advance the transportation charges for these potential workers.

SEE GAIN OF $15,000,000.

It is estimated that while the proposed fare reduction might cost the railroad about $1,000,000, the carriers would gain $16,000,000 at the time that sum, through the freight returns on the additional foodstuffs produced by these extra farm workers.

The half-fare workers, it is calculated, would produce extra crops sufficient to fill at least 250,000 thirty-ton cars. The economic value of extra crops to the country, the department states, would be even enough to warrant free transportation, although that is not asked.

While there is a shortage of skilled hands on the farm, the department explains, there is no cause for alarm, if every means of facilitating the recruiting of former and war-emergency agricultural labor is utilized.

Uxtry From Germany! All About U-Boat Panic in Gotham

By NEWTON C. FARRE.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army in France, June 12.—Here is the latest news about New York and the "submarine scare" as it drifted across our lines this afternoon in a German toy balloon carrying sheets of propaganda. This is what the imaginative Germans had to say about it:

"Thousands of Brooklynites are sleeping in collars fearing a night bombardment. Some of the wealthiest are moving toward Chicago. The few Wall street brokers who must remain downtown in Manhattan are engaging cots in Turkish baths in the Woolworth Building and other skyscrapers.

"Atlantic City and other seaside resorts are noticeably shy of bathing nymphs on account of fear of submarine shells."

RUSH OF RECRUITING AT BRITISH MISSION

Announcement from Washington that the agreement permitting the drafting of British subjects residing in the United States is soon to go into effect caused a rush of men anxious to enlist to the British Canadian Recruiting Mission at No. 44 Bromfield street, today. Official word received at the mission from Washington indicates that the draft agreement will be in operation in a very short time, and it is expected that several thousand Canadians will enlist within the 60 day period that is to be given them for voluntary service.

Cider Fumes Fatal to Tank Cleaner at Lynnfield

Lynnfield Centre, June 13.—Suffocation by cider fumes is believed to have caused the death of Arthur L. Tuttle, forty-three, whose body was found today in a cider tank which he had been assigned to clean at the Gerry cider mill of this town.

Tuttle was sent in to clean the tank last night. He did not come home, and his relatives became anxious. The body was found by a workman at the mill. It was lying at the bottom of the deep tank, which is large enough to accommodate four cleaners at a time. Employes say that the fumes from cider are very strong, and that the tank had been closed for a long time.

Tuttle was unmarried, and lived on Forest Hill avenue, with two sisters, Nellie and Frances. He leaves another sister, Mrs. C. M. Parker of Lynn, and a brother, H. L. Tuttle of Somerville.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Ladies! Try This! Darkens beautifully and nobody can tell—brings back its glossy and youthfulness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw the through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant, and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Advertisement.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 12.—Plans were formulated today for a combination of 200,000 industrial plants in the United States employing more than 10,000,000 workers and with an aggregate capitalization of tens of billions of dollars to help win the war and safeguard the interests of business men in taxation, trade and tariff problems growing out of the war. The project was outlined at a meeting of manufacturers from New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey and Delaware, held here.

Paris, June 13.—Arthur Blumenthal, of Wilmington, N. C.; Harold Y. Haxon, of Washington, and Allan Nichols, of Palo Alto, Calif., all members of the Lafayette Escadrille, are missing after a bombing raid over the enemy lines.

WOMEN ALIENS TO REGISTER JUNE 17-26

German women of fourteen and over must register between June 17 and 26.

United States Marshal Mitchell issued orders to that effect today. He has supplied Police Commissioner O'Meara, who has been designated as chief registrant for Boston, with affidavits upon which the registrations will be executed.

All German alien females who register will be compelled to furnish four photographs of themselves, 2x3 inches, this rule having been enforced at the registration of German alien males. The rules follow:

"A female enemy alien, citizen, denizen or subject of the Austro-Hungarian empire are not required to register under the President's proclamation. Natives, citizens, denizens or subjects of the German empire or of the Imperial German government, who are within the United States and not actually naturalized as American citizens, must register as German alien females.

PRISON FOR VIOLATORS

A German alien female required to register who fails to complete her registration within the time fixed therefor or who violates or attempts to violate or of whom there is reasonable ground to believe that she is about to violate any regulation duly promulgated by President Wilson, is liable to imprisonment, restraint and detention for the duration of the war, or to give security, or to removal from the United States.

"A female, irrespective of the citizenship of her parents, born in this country, is an American citizen and is not a German alien required to register unless she has become naturalized in or taken an oath of allegiance to Germany, or she has married a citizen or subject of Germany who has not acquired citizenship in the United States and the marital relation has not been terminated by death or absolute divorce; or such marital relation has been terminated by death or absolute divorce and she has not resumed her American citizenship.

AS TO NATURALIZATION.

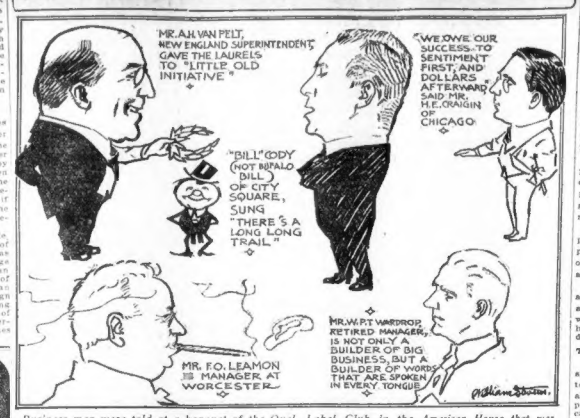
"A female originally a native, citizen, denizen or subject of Germany, is not, if she has become naturalized in the United States, a German alien required to register unless subsequent to her naturalization in the United States she has become naturalized or taken an oath of allegiance to Germany; or has otherwise resumed her German nationality or subsequent to her naturalization in the United States she has married a citizen or subject of Germany who has not become naturalized here, and the marital relation has not been terminated by death or absolute divorce; or such marital relation has been terminated by death or absolute divorce, and she had not resumed her American citizenship; or subsequent to her naturalization in the United States, she has become naturalized in or sworn allegiance to any other country.

MARRIAGE TO FOREIGNER.

"Any American woman who marries a foreigner takes the nationality of her husband. At the termination of the marital relation she may resume her American citizenship, if abroad, by registering as an American citizen within one year with a consul of the United States, or by returning to reside with in the United States, or residing here at the termination of the marital relation, by continuing to reside therein.

"Marriage of a German alien female, prior to April 6, 1917, to a citizen of the United States, naturalized her as an American citizen. The marriage of a German alien widow to an American citizen, prior to April 6 of last year, naturalized as American citizens herself and such of her foreign born minor children as were dwelling within this country at the time of such marriage or who became permanent residents of the United States before reaching their majority."

MUST ADVERTISE LIBERALLY DURING WAR



Business men were told at a banquet of the Oval Label Club in the American House that war conditions, with consequent contingencies, should be a spur, not a drawback, in the advertising game. The AMERICAN cartoonist caught some of the banqueters in action.

$4,000,000 VICTIM OF U-BOAT INSURED HERE

Boston underwriters insured the Norwegian steamship Windegan, which was looted and sunk by a U-boat, and will be hard hit by its loss, for the vessel and its cargo were valued at about $4,000,000. The Windegan was practically new and was valued at $1,000,000. It carried eighty tons of copper, worth $1,000,000, which the Germans seized, and $2,000,000 worth of wool, loaded at Chilean ports.

EAST BOSTON WOMAN DIES OF CAR INJURIES

Rose Burke, sixty, of Maverick street, East Boston, who was struck by the fender of an inbound Orient Heights tunnel car while crossing opposite of No. 75 Meridian street, died today from her injuries. The motorman, Michael J. Sullivan, East Cambridge, was held on the technical charge of manslaughter.

Order direct from The Kenton Pharmacal Co., Suite 407, Coppin Bldg., Covington, Ky., if your druggist will not supply you. You will save yourself much annoyance by refusing to accept a substitute.

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. —Advertisement.

Type on Menu Card of Oval Label Club Advises Keeping Up Courage

"The merchant or manufacturer who stops advertising during the war spreads doubt and unrest and loses the greater part of former investment. It is printers' ink."

The above quotation from the menu card was the keynote of the speeches at a banquet of the Oval Label club at the American House. The club is composed of members of the Eastern sales force of Armour & Co., and members were present from many parts of New England.

President M. M. Cohen, in opening the speaking, paid a tribute to "Father Joe" Twombley, honorary president of the club, that was greeted with applause.

"Advertising is a very new art, according to the dictionaries," continued Mr. Cohen. "To me it seems very old. Eve must have been the first advertiser to call attention to her wares; if she hadn't been Adam wouldn't have bitten the apple. Noah must have done a lot of advertising or he would not have got the contract to build the ark. Moses did a great advertising stunt, too, with his walking stick that he turned into a serpent."

INTERESTING ADDRESS.

An interesting address on lithographic advertising matter, illustrated with specimens of materials used in the craft, was made by H. W. Kell of the Forbes Lithograph Company.

He described the process of taking impressions from stone as the oldest method of printing in existence, and explained the chemistry involved in the various steps of the art. At the close of his remarks he answered numerous questions, stating in reply to one that Bavaria produces the world's supply of lithographic stone, but that there is still a considerable supply in the United States.

H. E. Craigin, advertising expert, of Chicago, called attention to the widespread prosperity that he had found in New England as a result of war activities, and that as a consequence the great mass of people were ready to purchase higher qualities of goods. Speaking of the value of advertising, he said:

"You may be able to get along without advertising; so you can get along without street cars—you can walk. But by advertising you greatly facilitate the work of the sales force. Salesmen on their part, should follow up their orders by keeping their customers well supplied with seasonable advertising."

PEN GIVEN TWOMBLEY.

W. P. T. Wardrop, formerly of Chicago but now a resident of Massachusetts, predicted a great future for branded goods with proper advertising behind them, and A. H. Van Pelt spoke of sentiment in business and praised the work of the Oval Label Club, which, he said, was cosmopolitan "with members representing all the origins and nationalities that make up America."

During the evening a handsome gold fountain pen was presented to Honorary President J. E. Twombley, and several songs were given by Williams Cody, with Joseph Downey at the piano.

Judge Grover held Fitzgerald in $500.

NEW PORT RULES TO MEET PERIL OF U-BOATS

New harbor regulations, designed to protect shipping against German spies, will affect practically every craft making this port, in the opinion of Collector Billings.

The regulations have not arrived as yet, but are expected at any time. One of their principal effects will be to prevent indiscriminate harbor navigation by small craft, particularly at night.

Motor boats of all kinds, including pleasure craft, must be licensed. This port will be closed, as will all others on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts, against secret aid to U-boats.

Special permits must be issued to all who wish to operate between sunset and sunrise, and these permits will not be handed out with a lavish hand. On the contrary, they will be decidedly few.

TO STOP JUNKMEN.

The junk dealers who make a specialty of visiting incoming ships to buy wastage from petty officers and members of the crew will be put out of business. Their trade is carried on mainly at night and the government's view is that the national emergency cannot permit this traffic to continue.

Coastwise vessels will be subject to the same restrictions and will be placed on the same footing as transAtlantic liners by the new rules. About the only vessels that will not be affected in some way are the ferries.

Every port of the United States having a navigable outlet to the Atlantic or Pacific, or to the Gulf of Mexico, is being safeguarded against German spies and virtually locked against coastwise or secret aid to the lurking U-boats, according to dispatches today from Washington.

KODAKS ARE BARRED.

Permits must be obtained by shipmasters going from one port to another, and notice must be given the collector of their destination and arrival. Special permits must be obtained to carry kodaks or cameras on any ship in a United States harbor with the exception of ferry boats, and then only on condition that no photographs will be taken in passage.

Every officer or seaman employed in harbor or coastwise navigation must obtain an official pass from the collector of his home port bearing full identification and photograph; this applies also to the men employed on the fishing vessels.

SEVERE PENALITIES.

Severe penalties will be inflicted for infractions of the laws, as the order comes under a section of the espionage act, and full enforcement of the rules will begin as soon as the necessary license forms and identification cards are printed and distributed.

Two Norwegian steamships have been sunk by U-boats off Cape Hatteras, and the submarines are apparently moving south. Survivors of the vessels sunk have reached New York.

Thus far the U-boats have sunk twenty vessels in American waters and have avoided patrol boats. It is believed that they operate only about sundown, are submerged during the day, and run to new locations by night.

LOAFERS HAVE UNTIL JULY 13 TO GET BUSY

"Tango Lizards," "Idle Rich," "Hoboes" and Others Given Month's Notice by McCall

A new month went into the calendar today—"Loafers' Month."

For today Governor McCall issued a proclamation under the new "Anti-Loafer" law.

This proclamation is, in effect, a month's notice to loafers.

Thirty days after the proclamation the following conditions shall prevail:

Every man and woman in the State, between 18 and 50 years, must engage in some regular, useful occupation for at least 30 hours a week.

Hence the "Loafers' Month," which began today, June 13, and ends on July 12. After that it will be a case of "work or get arrested," July 13 will be unlucky for idlers.

Oh, yes, our new law has teeth in it. Violators may be fined as much as $100 or jailed as long as three months. Or they may get both together.

Among the gentry particularly hit by the new law, when it gets into full swing a month hence, are such as these:

CUTHBERT FEATHERFOOT—THE TANGO LIZARD.

CLARENCE COUPON—THE RICH IDLER.

DUSTY RHOADES—THE HOBO.

HOBO, OF COURSE, IS LOAFER.

For the law requires work "in some useful, useful and recognized business, profession, occupation, trade or employment."

That isn't any question, of course, but what Dusty Rhoades is a loafer. The professional tramp or hobo will have slim chance when the "A-L law" gets him.

Regarding Cuthert Featherfoot, the tango lizard and loungehound, there is little question, either.

The masculine butterflies of fashion, whose best bet is a new dance step or the latest wrinkle in silk socks, will have to wiggle fearfully to show that they are engaged in "useful, recognized" business or occupation.

But along comes Clarence Coupon, who has $10,000 a year. It is plenty for him and his dependents, if he has any.

"Why, there's no need of my working," protests Clarence, "I have enough to live on and I would only be keeping some other man out of work."

"IDLE RICH" MUST WORK.

"Not by your thirty-six hours a week," says the Anti-Loafer law. You will notice that I carry a clause which says that possession of income enough to live on shall not be a defence to any prosecution under the act."

So the "idle-richers" must do something. It may be that the operation of this law will bring to the surface some singular ailing for real work.

It may be that the courts will be called upon to decide just what is "useful, recognized occupation, etc."

A man who cannot get work, or says he cannot, will be required to report his case to registration agents. He will be assigned to some employer who has a place for him. If he does n't go after the job thus offered he may be prosecuted. If the job, for any reason, falls through, the man must report himself again for another chance.

Allowance is made under the law for strikers, school and college students and apprentices.

McCALL'S PROCLAMATION.

After calling attention to the provisions of the anti-loafing act, Governor McCall concluded in his proclamation as follows:

"Now, therefore, I, Samuel W. McCall, Governor of the Commonwealth, by virtue of and in accordance with the provisions of said act, do hereby proclaim that the employment of all men able to work is necessary for the public protection and welfare; and I do hereby admonish all male residents of the Commonwealth who are able to work and who are between the ages of eighteen and fifty years to engage in some regular useful occupation for at least thirty-six hours per week, and to comply with the provisions of the aforesaid act relative to registration and otherwise, and I do hereby call upon the police officers of the Commonwealth and of the cities and towns diligently to enforce this act, and also call upon those who shall be designated agents for the registration of the unemployed in the several cities and towns of the Commonwealth to assist to the best of their ability the officers of the Commonwealth who shall be charged with the duty of conducting the registration."

DEVENS TO OPEN NEW DENTAL HOSPITAL

Building Will Be in Charge of Capt. Power—Separate Annex for Depot Brigade

By WILLIAM FLYNN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, June 13.—A new dental hospital, the first of its kind in the country, is to be opened at this cantonment within a few days.

The building, which is situated close to the Liberty Theatre in the centre of the camp, has been completed and when the equipment is distributed it will be placed in commission.

Hereafter, all of the dental work in the division and other organizations, with the exception of the depot brigade, will be done in this building.

The hospital is two stories high and arranged to accommodate sixteen operators.

The ground floor contains reception rooms for officers and men, a record room, an extracting room and three officers' operating rooms. Most of the upper floor is given over to a clinic with twelve chairs. There is also a dental laboratory and locker rooms for the dental surgeons.

CAPTAIN POWER IN CHARGE.

An annex to the camp dental hospital is to be established in the third infirmary of the depot brigade, where the teeth of only the men in the depot brigade will be treated by ten dental surgeons assigned to that work.

The new hospital will be in charge of Captain Thomas E. Power of Cambridge, a graduate of Tufts Dental College. Captain Walter Granddige of Bridgeport, Ct., will have charge of the Depot Brigade annex and all of the work will come under the supervision of Major John L. Schock, the camp dental surgeon.

Major Schock comes from Nebraska. He is a graduate of the Kansas City Dental College and was the first dentist to be assigned to this camp.

The dental organization here has the reputation of being the best in the army. Nearly 60,000 different operations have been performed upon the teeth of the officers and men of this camp during the past eight months and, figuring the cost of materials and depreciation on each operation, has cost the government an average of 75 cents each.

DANIELS DENTAL SURGEON.

First Lieutenant Frederick C. Daniels of Waterbury, Conn., is the division dental surgeon.

There are forty-six commissioned dentists in camp at the present time, thirty-one of whom are assigned to the seventy-sixth division. Sixty-six dentists in addition to about forty enlisted men have been on duty here since the cantonment opened. The work done by Major Schock and his assistants has been the source of much favorable comment from Washington. Approximately sixteen percent. of the men in the first draft were rejected because of poor teeth but the camp dentists materially reduced this percentage of rejections in subsequent drafts.

EDITORIAL

The increase in railroad fares to three cents a mile has worked a hardship on the soldiers at Camp Devens, and especially upon those whose homes are situated at long distances from the cantonment.

The fare from Ayer to Boston has been increased from 91 cents to $1.17, and it has been estimated that less than one per cent. of the soldiers in the camp will benefit by the one-cent-a-mile tariff clause.

Under the terms of this clause only those soldiers who have been granted an extended leave are allowed the privilege of traveling on the railroad at the rate of one cent a mile, and only in rare instances are soldiers granted such leave at Devens.

Week-end passes are not regarded as extended leave of absence, and soldiers returning home for Saturdays and Sundays must pay the full fare if they travel on a railroad.

A statement should be forthcoming from somebody as to whether this increase asked for the clause intended it to work out the way it has, and if not it should be corrected.

NAVAL PROVOST GUARD NABS SPY SUSPECT

New Recruit at Pier Had Plans of Boston Harbor on His Person

By S. HARRY FERRIS.

Aboard the Receiving Ship at Boston, June 13.—In a number of cities where large number of sailors are congregated it has been necessary for the government to step in and take part in preserving suitable moral conditions. That such action has not been necessary in Boston is due in large measure to the excellence of the work of the Provost Guard with headquarters on the Receiving Ship.

The guard is under the command of Lieutenant Leonard and is on its job twenty-four hours of every day. Its duties consist in rounding up violators of the numerous Federal laws that have been enacted for the protection of Uncle Sam's soldiers and sailors and the enforcement of the provisions of the espionage act.

In the apprehending of spies members of the guard have been particularly active both when they were on and when they were off regular duty. The latest prisoner to be taken on the charge of aiding the enemy, by attempting to furnish information was ferreted out on the ship itself. He was a recent arrival from the Receiving Ship at New York, and conducted his campaign so secretly that he had been able to hoodwink the naval authorities in the metropolis.

The Commonwealth spy-catchers were not so easily hoodwinked. The young recruit had been in Boston only a short time when he was taken into custody and it was discovered that he had carefully-made plans of the harbor and had been carrying on a suspicious correspondence with persons bearing German names.

Bootleggers are the bane of existence for the Provost Guard. The profits of the traffic are so large that many are willing to take a chance at surreptitiously slipping a supply of intoxicants to the sailors.

Letter From War Martyr Makes the House Weep

Washington, June 12.—A posthumous letter from a martyr to democracy to his mother was read in the House and into the record by Representative Henry T. Rainey. The members wept.

It was from Adrian Edwards, a lawyer of Carrollton, Ill., who enlisted at the start of the war. Like many others, Edwards had his premonition of passing into the great beyond, as the missive shows. He died leading a charge in battle on May 4.

Rainey, in presenting the letter, said it was "the best tribute that could be paid the young man, "who has heard the call of his country."

THE LETTER.

Here is the letter:

Somewhere in France.

My Dear Mother—I am about to go into battle and have instructed the company clerk to send you this letter in case I become a casualty; hence on the receipt of this letter by you will indicate that I am either with God or a prisoner in the hands of the enemy.

Since I will never become a prisoner of the Hun if I remain conscious and able to fight, it is doubtful if I will ever be an inmate of a German prison camp.

Do not grieve that I am among the missing, but rather rejoice that you have given a son in sacrifice to make the greatest military caste of all time lay down the sword—to save civilization, to prevent future wars, to punish the Huns, who have disregarded every law of God and mankind, whose only God is the god of war and military force—and to make the world safe for democracy.

THE SPARTAN MOTHER.

I desire that you view the matter in the light and spirit of the Spartan mothers of old, who, when their sons went forth to battle for freedom and their native land, said to their sons: "Either come home proudly bearing your shield before you or upon it."

War was absolutely necessary on the part of my country, and although I was 34 years old and nobody expected me to go, yet some one had to go, some must make the sacrifice, some mother must lose her son.

In the light of these facts, and knowing our country's great need, I volunteered and never for one moment regretted my decision and I will not, although my life and a useful career must end. Life is not the highest boon of existence. There are ideals that are superhuman, interests greater than life itself for which it is worth while fighting, suffering and dying.

HIS WILL.

If possible after the war I would like for my body to be brought to America and interred at White Hall. I have provided well for your support, as I have a $10,000 insurance policy with the government and several thousand with the old line companies. My friend Thompson and Jess have these policies and other valuable papers.

Goodby, mother. I will see you in the next world. You may know I died fighting for you, my country and all that life holds dear. Your son.

Adrian.

Pittsfield, June 13.—Sketches, in the nude, of his "ideal woman" who is referred to as "Madame X," made by Albert N. Turner, secretary of the Connecticut State Park Commission and a Yale graduate, left where his wife might find them, were found by Judge S. G. Tenney of Williamstown, retiring in the separate support proceedings brought by Mrs. Mary S. Turner of Sheffield, to be a "refinement of cruel and abusive treatment which no self-respecting woman should be obliged to endure, and are a justifiable cause of living apart from her husband."

The referee's report was filed here by Probate Court. Turner appealed from the finding of Probate Court last Summer, which had ruled he pay his wife $50 down and $40 a month separate support maintenance.

DEVENS RUNAWAY UNDER GUARD AT PLATTSBURG

Camp Devens, Ayer, June 13.—Private Elmer Rocala of B Company of the 303d machine gun battalion, who escaped while under confinement at this cantonment, was captured and escaped a second time, was recaptured in New York State, is now under guard at Plattsburgh. Soldiers have been sent to bring him back here, and he probably will be court-martialled on a charge of desertion.

'STRONG-ARM' IS IN DISCARD NOW, SAYS DOWD

Policeman's Job Is Work of Art, Declares Man Dismissed From Revere Force

It may require some art to paint a picture,
To sculp a statue right is quite a feat,
You're something more than so-so if they call you "Virtuoso,"
And you tease the violin like Kubelik,
But eloquence is not confined to palettes,
Though symphonies and "fugitives" seem apart,
The common duty may become a thing of beauty
And policing be uplifted to an Art.
(Favorite of Revere).

Add to the fine arts—policing.

Thomas W. Dowd of Revere says policing is, or should be, an art.

He declares that the trained policeman of the future must be an artist in his work.

Otherwise he will be a failure.

Dowd is the policeman whom Mayor Alfred S. Hall of Revere dismissed from the force after a hearing on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and detrimental to discipline. Dowd denies it vigorously and has appealed his case to the Chelsea court.

In the course of the controversy Dowd made the remark that "Policeing is an art." He believes that a proper policeman is something more than a mere creature of muscle and a book of regulations.

Regarding police work as a fine art Dowd makes these points:

The day of mere muscle and strong grip for a policeman has gone by.

The greatest need of the present police situation is education.

There may be occasional geniuses in police work, but the general standard should be higher.

There is too much "standing guard" and not enough "follow up" and preventive work.

Policemen should be married. It makes them better men.

Here's a thumb-nail sketch of Dowd.

Tall, slender, tip-top condition, 29 years. Class 4 in the draft, married seven and one-half years, three children, joined the Revere police force two months after he married studied hard to improve himself, believes a policeman can be an artist in his work and that, as such, he should be "worthy of his hire." Doesn't smoke or drink.

That's Dowd.

He is studying for the bar. He is taking a university extension course in English. He attended the Harvard College lectures on police work by New York experts. He practices the "modus operandi" system of studying individual methods of criminals, likewise the French "portrait parle" or study of facial lines. Finger-printing is an old story to him.

Dowd explained his "police art" ideas today thus:

"The policeman is to the judiciary system what the trained nurse is to the medical service. When a policeman is given a uniform, a club, a lunch, of keys and a few directions, he does not get with them merely walking his beat.

"No man, in the first place, should be put on any police force unless he has at least a high school education. Once on the force, he should study to become a real good policeman and to master the art of policing.

"He must set certain standards for himself. The greatest need in the present police situation is education. The present system of placing men to work and letting them learn from experience is unfair to the police, to persons arrested and to the general public. It breeds bitterness and a sense of injustice.

"Under the present system arrests often develop where they might be avoided if trained judgment had been used by the policeman in the first place.

"Superior officers, lieutenants, captains and so on, will be required in the future to have some knowledge of business administration. It takes a trained administrator to spend properly the police appropriation of any community of importance.

"The day of mere muscle and a strong grip for a policeman has gone by. A certain standard of mentality should be required. The present standard of examination by the Civil Service Commission should be of higher grade.

"The policeman at present is not respected the way that a man qualified to fill that position should be.

"Politics—to say 'Keep out of politics' would be pure altruism.

"It couldn't be. I mean this. A policeman must mix in the political life of his community because he is a part of its government. He shall not work for any individual candidate or idea. But, if anything in local administration or politics affects the policeman or his work, he should be free to say so, and to have his wrongs rectified. The greatest insurance against the politician interfering with the police force is to let the policeman know that the policeman cannot only kick, but can be heard."

ALIEN WHO CHANGED RESIDENCE ARRESTED

Fort Chester, N. Y., June 13.—Frank Bindel, an alien, was arrested at Parker's Hill by the Greenwich police at the request of the Bridgeport headquarters of the department of justice. Bindel is a chauffeur and is employed by M. J. Berg, a summer resident here, who recently moved up from New York. The Berg place is on the line between Greenwich and Stamford, but the building to which Bindel resides is in Greenwich. He should have notified the Greenwich authorities of the change of residence. This, however, is not believed to be the reason why the department of justice wants him.

WEISCOPF MAY HEAD NEW DIVISION SCHOOL

Camp Devens, Ayer, June 13.—Major E. L. Weiscopf of Boston is taking a course of instruction in the administration of division school. Major Wiescopf, who has gained some prominence as counsel for Jesse Pomeroy, the famous boy convict at Charlestown state prison, commands one of the depot brigade battalions and will probably be made head of the schools of the new division.

12 RESCUED AT HOTEL BLAZE IN REVERE

Stairways Cut Off by Smoke—Two Alarms for Fire on Beach Boulevard

Ten guests of the Metropolitan Hotel, Revere Beach, and two maids were carried down ladders from the upper floors of the building early today in a fire which started in the basement and filled the rooms and corridors with smoke, cutting off escape by the stairways.

Six police officers who entered the burning structure to arouse the guests were cut off from the stairs by smoke. They led the occupants to a piazza on the second floor, where ladders were raised on the arrival of the firemen, and all carried to safety.

Two alarms were sounded calling the entire fighting force of the city. Several amusement structures along the boulevard were threatened until the fire was under control.

The building is located at No. 171 Boulevard, the rear of the structure extending to Ocean avenue. It is in the midst of the amusement section.

AROUSED BY POLICE.

Seven employes sleeping on the fourth floor were aroused by the police officers and escaped through rear stairways to the street unassisted.

The fire started in a pile of rubbish in the basement and a heavy smoke rolled through the entire building.

Fred Ulven, motorman of a Beach street car, discovered smoke pouring from the windows and sounded an alarm, and on the arrival of the department a second alarm was pulled, summoning the entire department.

Sergeant Charles C. Walton, accompanied by Patrolmen Michael Hartigan, Earl Smith and Cornelius Cronin of the town police and Patrolmen John A. Murphy and Michael Caddigan of the Metropolitan Park police, arrived on the scene soon after the fire was discovered and entered the building to arouse the guests and employes.

AROUSE GUESTS

The first floor fronting on the Boulevard is occupied as a dining room and the officers rushed to the second floor and aroused David Crawford of Holyoke and wife and daughter Isabelle.

On the third floor Miss Jennie M. Haynes of New York and her aunt, Mrs. F. L. Chase, and Harry W. King of Milford were called.

Miss Ruth Coolidge and Miss Mary Rooney, maids, were also awakened and with the other occupants of the floor were led to the stairway by the police.

Finding their escape cut off they went to a piazza on the side of the hotel and awaited the arrival of the firemen.

J. Kaplan and R. Markemrohm of New York, occupants of rooms on the third floor, and seven male employes on the fourth floor were able to escape unassisted.

The building is a four-story wooden structure and one of the oldest buildings on the waterfront.

The apparatus fought the flames from the Boulevard and Ocean avenue for about two hours before the all-out was sounded and the guests and employes then returned to their rooms.

RICH WIDOW SAYS THAT DENTIST ADMITTED THEFT OF HER JEWELS

MRS. WILBUR SAYS HOMER FORCED HER TO SIGN PAPER CLEARING HIM

political pull, and was infatuated with him.

Q.—After your jewels were stolen did you meet Dr. Homer in New Hampshire? A.—Yes. At the Profile House. My counsel, Judge Brackett, was with me. Dr. Homer refused to talk about the jewels.

Q.—Did you see him again? A.—Yes. I asked him why he stole the jewels, and he said "I needed the money."

Mrs. Wilbr said that at that time, Dr. Homer had told her that if she did not do as he told her he would put her "on the rocks." At his command she promised to write to two New York lawyers, telling them that she was friendly with Dr. Homer. This was to prevent failure on his part to get a license.

Q.—Did he ask for money? A.—He wanted $50 for an automobile bill. I told him I did not have that much at hand and gave him $30. I promised to send him $20 to the Hotel Lenox.

When I wrote to the New York lawyers I asked him why he had stolen the jewels. He said he needed the money to go into business.

Q.—Did you ask what he got for them? A.—Yes, adn he said $1150, but he wouldn't tell me where he disposed of them or to whom.

SIGNED THE PAPER.

Q.—Did you sign a paper authorizing him to sell the jewels? A.—Yes, I did. I then told him I would have him arrested for stealing them. He said there wasn't one chance in a hundred that I could have him arrested. He compelled me to write page after page before he was satisfied with the phraseology of the letter authorizing him to sell the jewels. He stood by me all the time and told me what to say. Sheet after sheet he destroyed and threw on the floor. Every word in the letter was dictated by him.

She caused a laugh in the courtroom when she told of a talk with Dr. Homer about Boston. "Boston is all Irish," he said, "even my lawyer Nicknase."

Mrs. Wilbur declared that Dr. Homer had knocked her down and blackened her eyes, and that he controlled her almost absolutely.

"I first met Dr. Homer at Beverly Hills Hotel, Beverly, Cal., in April or May, 1916," she said.

Q.—Were you ever engaged to him? A.—No.

Q.—Were you ever in love with him? A.—No. I liked him at first. He told me a hard luck story, saying that he would like to meet some nice people who could help him professionally.

AFRAID OF DISGRACE.

Q.After being knocked down, having your eyes blackened so you couldn't leave your room for a week, you were still willing to be his guest at dinner? A.—He compelled me to.

Q.—How could he force you to go to dinner in a public hotel? A.—I was afraid of disgrace, and went under protest to maintain peace.

Incidents concerning the trip made by Mrs. Wilbur from Los Angeles to Boston, shortly before Dr. Homer is alleged to have robbed her of jewelry with $17,500 in the Hotel Touraine, and specifications regarding certain ill treatment which, she alleges, she suffered from Dr. Homer, comprised the bulk of Mrs. Wilbur's testimony on direct examination today.

She completed her direct testimony and the cross-examination began. The trial is under way before Judge Lawton and a jury in the second session of the criminal court.

Counsel for Dr. Homer asked her if the doctor knew at what time she would leave Los Angeles.

"The doctor knew I was going but he did not know the time I would leave."

Q.—Had you made any arrangements to meet him in Chicago? A.—No.

Q.—Were you surprised to see him on the platform when your train arrived? A.—No, although I did not know he was in the city. I had heard that he was going there.

ASKED HER TO MEET HIM

Mrs. Wilbur was shown a telegram, dated Chicago, April 27, 1917, and signed by Homer. The alleged robbery in Boston occurred May 12, 1917. The telegram implored Mrs. Wilbur to meet him in Chicago. She was asked to explain it.

"Most emphatically I did not expect to meet Dr. Homer in Chicago," she replied. "I am quite sure that I did not reply to the telegram."

On further questioning, she said:

"I went to Dr. Homer's office in Los Angeles at his request, after he had left there, because he said he had some valuable books that he would like to have me pack. There I met his secretary for the first time. The books were old law books, of no value."

She said that prior to that time, Miss Montgomery, the doctor's secretary, had never been in her apartment, but that she came after that, sometimes of her own accord and sometimes because Mrs. Wilbur sent for her.

Q.—Didn't you know his real name was Joseph Homer Williams? Don't you know that the reason he dropped the Williams was because there were three other men of the same name in Los Angeles? A.—He told me the cnange in his name was authorized by the courts.

OVERCOME DURING WALK.

Mrs. Wilbur said that she was in bed April 26 and 27 of last year, in consequence of a fall, and that Miss Montgomery had called on her.

Q.—Did the fall have anything to do with your leaving Los Angeles? A.—No. I had decided to go two or three days before.

Q.—What was the nature of the fall? A.—It was an act for which Dr. Homer was responsible.

Q.—In what way? A.—He sent word that he must see me. I replied that I was sick in bed. He said that it was something very important, and that he must see me. I dressed and went downstairs, where I found he had an automobile waiting for me. He wanted me to go to ride with him. I declined, so we walked. We walked a long distance until I became exhausted and could go no further. Dr. Homer left, saying that he would get an automobile to take me back, but he did not return. Then I fell, and remained until some men came and took me back to the hotel. There I fell again.

HAD TRAVELED EXTENSIVELY.

Q.—Why did the doctor treat you so? A.—I think it was because he was afraid I would have him arrested for the way he had treated me a few days before, at the Hotel Sherrill.

Q.—Did you tell Miss Montgomery when you were going to leave Los Angeles? A.—I told her I would go Wednesday by night for Reno.

Q.—Did you ask her to telegraph Dr. Homer? A.—I did not.

Q.—You have been an extensive traveler, have you not? A.—I have been in California five or six times, to Honolulu, to Nassau, to Naples, and to Cuba. Most of the trips I made with my husband.

Q.—How did you happen to remain over night in Chicago on your last ever night in Chicago? A.—It was purely accidental. I missed connections.

Q.—Where did you go? A.—To the Hotel Blackstone.

DIDN'T OBJECT

Q.—Did Dr. Homer go too? A.—He went in my carriage, though not by my invitation.

Q.—Did you object? A.—I do not think so.

About fifteen or twenty minutes after she reached her room, she said, Dr. Homer rapped at the door and said he wanted to see her. She thought it was her niece when she heard the rap. She went forth him on a drive through North Park, Chicago" and they stopped at a hotel and a refreshment place in the park.

Blue Devil Proud of This Poignard That Killed Hun at Verdun

By KATHERINE BROOKS.

In the war since August 1, 1914, wounded more times than the years he has been fighting; covered with decorations won at Verdun, in Belgium and Flanders Field, and his pockets full of German trophies—such is the record of Maurice Mouvier—or, as he puts it, Mouvier Maurice—Chasseur Alpin and Blue Devil, one of the famous ninety for whom Boston's joy bells have been ringing all day long.

His proudest trophy is a German sheath knife which he took at the dagger's point—yes, dagger's point was what he told me, for the Blue Devils apparently fight with a great variety of weapons. They are experts in the fighting line, and I'm not sure from the gleam in Maurice's blue eyes when he showed me this knife, that he would not rather fight "au poignard" than with bullets, for when he's with a man you don't always know where he falls; but if you knife him, you can get a trophy.

"You keel heem?"

GOT HIS MAN VERDUN.

This was the may my French sounded to Maurice. He nodded with superb casualness. Perhaps the proximity of 90 Blue Devils made me bloodthirsty. I was glad he had killed his "Boche," I congratulated him, and he shook hands with me in dignified acknowledgement.

"I killed him at Verdun," said he. "How?"

"With my poignard," he answered, and settled himself, with a pull at his cigar, as though he felt he had acquitted himself of a full and graphic account of the combat.

For Maurice Mouvier, like his comrades, is a fighter, not a talker. He can kill the boche, and get wounded, and get decorated, and kill more boches, and get wounded again, and so on, holding the great "waits of brass" at Verdun against the onslaught of Huns; but he cannot tell you how he did it.

SHARP AS WELL AS HANDSOMT

The knife is a handsome one, with eyes, beautifully made in a metal sheath. On the handle is a silver imperial crown, handwrought. Maurice drew it from the sheath and handed it to me politely.

"Ees handsome," I ventured—or words to that effect, in my broken French, fingering the knife gingerly.

"It is sharp," he assured me, with a childlike smile.

Around the automobile outside the State House, where we were talking just before the group left for a trip to Camp Devens, a crowd had gathered. A small boy's head thrust itself wildly under my arm to view the trophy. Such abject adoration as shone in that boy's eyes deserved recognition. I held the knife out for him to see and explained. The youngster's eyes bulged, and followed the shining blade as young Mouvier returned it nonchalantly to his pocket.

"I am very tiredo," he told me. "I have been wounded so many times, and have not entirely recovered; and then lately we have travelled so far and seen so any people; but—"

With the word around the friendly and eager crowd, and lingered on a group of very feminine State House employes, who were hanging over the steps for a last wave of farewell, as though the sight were a pleasant one to eyes strained with war.

THREW KISS AT CROWD OF GIRLS.

"I am very tiredo," he told me. "I have been wounded so many times, and have not entirely recovered; and then lately we have travelled so far and seen so any people; but—"

With the word around the friendly and eager crowd, and lingered on a group of very feminine State House employes, who were hanging over the steps for a last wave of farewell, as though the sight were a pleasant one to eyes strained with war.

THREW KISS AT CROWD OF GIRLS.

One of the chasseurs threw a kiss toward the group. There was a chorus of shrill, pleased squeals.

"Aren't they too sweet?" lisped a soft voice.

Now, "sweet," is not a happy word for a Blue Devil, deir reader. They are brave, they are efficient, they are philosophical; many of them are handsome; all are gallant, and all, I suspect, susceptible. But they are too battle-scared too suggest any very soft adjective. They are weather-beaten, brown and hard and sturdy tree trunks. Under all the gaiety of their eyes—mostly blue eyes, like those of Maurice—lurks the vision of blood and death.

As the stream of autos began to move, and the line of waving Chasseurs began its procession to Camp Devens to learn how American fighters are preparing to stand side by side with them in the fight, everybody knew that most of those eyes, before Boston ever saw them again, would look once more on the grim face of war.

Injured Hub Aviator Sent Home in Car of Geraldine Farrar

By International News Service.

Warren, O., June 13.—George W. Church, son of John H. Church, a Boston financier, injured six weeks ago in a balloon accident, left here last night for Boston on the special car used by Geraldine Farrar, the opera singer, in her tour over the country. Church was in a plaster cast suffering from a broken back. A cot was provided for him on the car.

Church has been in the City Hospital here in the care of two Boston surgeons and two trained nurses. He was hurt when, with four other balloon students at the Akron school, they made a flight to Warren. When caught in a high wind the balloon dashed into a tree. Church was the most seriously injured. It was stated that Miss Farrar's car was obtained on a special permit from the government. It was put on a regular Pennsylvania train which left here last night.

There is no George W. Church listed in the Boston directory.

HUB EXTENDS WARM GREETING TO BLUE DEVILS

marching order and carried their famous French rifles with long bayonets, and an ammount of baggage on their back that, as more than one bystander remarked, "Must have weighed a ton." Practically all wore heavy mustaches, and looked like real fighters.

At the head of the column as they marched down the station was borne a huge French flag, which the crowd cheered lustily.

Fifty officers were detailed to handle the crowds. A rope extended from the entrance end of the station, opposite Train 27, to keep a passageway for the Frenchmen to get to the street.

The celebrated bugler of the Blue Devils headed the column.

The visitors were welcomed and escorted by a reception committee, including the French Consul, Joseph Fiamand; Major Philip K. Sears, U. S. A., of the Northeastern Department; Lieutenant Governor Calvin C. Coolidge, U. S. N.; Grafton D. Cushing, and Lieutenant W. H. Harter of the Governor's Staff.

BREAKFAST AT HARVARD CLUB.

The Frenchmen were taken in big touring cars to the Harvard Club for breakfast, to be followed by a day of sight-seeing and speech-making to aid the sale of war saving stamps.

Lieutenant LeMoal is in command of the Blue Devils; and Lieutenants Camal of the Marines, and Clusseau of the Zouaves, are other officers with the group. These three are the only members who speak English fluently, although a few of the men know a smattering of the language.

At the Harvard Club the men were greeted by former Lieutenant-Governor Louis A. Frothingham and a committee. The meeting with Mr. Frothingham was in the nature of a reunion, for he had crossed with the unit, and knew the men personally.

They ate breakfast hungrily, as they were about an hour behind schedule, and their journey from Baltimore, which they left at 8:05 last night, had given them a hearty appetite.

The menu served included melon, ham and eggs, friend potatoes, coffee and bread.

INSISTED ON WHITE BREAD.

An amusing detail was that the men insisted on having white bread instead of the rolls that had been planned, so the menu was changed, and a combination white "war" bread substituted.

In other matters their attention to detail has entertained their entertainers. At the South Station they would not leave until every bit of baggage belonging to them had been accounted for and loaded onto the automobiles.

The men are for the most part very tired, and since their arrival in this country a number have dropped out and are recuperating in hospitals in different cities. The unit started with 102, but now consists of only 99. Two or three dropped out on account of the heat yesterday at Baltimore, where they marched only a mile. The men are all recovered from their wounds, and some of them have found the program mapped out for them here too strenuous.

They left their 30-pound packs at the Westminster and are marching simply their side arms and long guns.

VISIT CAMP DEVENS.

The program today included a visit to the Constitutional Convention, a trip to Camp Devens, with a stop at Concord, a private dinner at the Westminster at 5 oclock, a tour of the theatres beginning at 7 p. m. and ending with a visit to the "Pops," Symphony Hall, where a big demonstration has been planned.

Boston has planned a great reception to the visitors especially tomorrow, Flag Day, when they will cooperate with the National War Savings Committee in the drive for War Savings Stamps pledges.

The American Marines, whose brilliant fighting has let the Hun to call them "The Devil Hounds," will take a prominent part in tomorrow's entertainment of the "Blue Devils." The marines will act as an escort of honor.

Tomorrow they will be met at the Hotel Westminster at 11:15 by the marines and the Navy Band from Hingham, and escorted to Faneuil Hall.

Mayor Peters will preside at the Faneuil Hall meeting, which is called for 12 o'clock sharp. There will be addresses by Lieutenant Demoal and Lieutenant Dumaret.

RALLY ON COMMON.

After the noon meeting they will be given a luncheon in the armory of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company.

At 2:30 the Marines and band will escort the visitors to the Chamber of Commerce, where they will be formally received by President Harriman and others.

Mlle. Mital, now playing at the Tremont Theatre, who is a War Savings enthusiast, will be one of the staff speakers at the Chamber of Commerce reception.

At 2:30 the visitors and their escort will proceed to Boston Common, where a rousing open-air meeting will be held at 4:15.

Robert F. Herrick, director for Massachusetts, will preside at this meeting and Dr. John F. Fitzgerald will deliver an address. A special feature at the common meeting will be a grand chorus of Boston school children, who will sing the Marseillaise and other songs, accompanied by the Navy band of Hingham.

CITY CLUB DINNER.

At 5:45 the visitors will be dined at the City Club, and at 7 o'clock will form on Beacon street and, escorted by the Marines and other military and naval organizations, will march to Mechanics' Hall by way of Park, Tremont and Boylston streets and Huntington avenue, where at 8 o'clock the great mass meeting of the day will be held. Here the "Blue Devils" will give an exhibition drill, and Madame Olga Petrova, the famous moving-picture actress, and Sergeant "Billie" Wellman, the noted American aviator, recently of the Lafayette Escadrille, will be among the speakers.

This will be the last chance to see the "Blue Devils," as they leave for New York on the midnight train.

At the State House Mrs. McCall, Mrs. Lane and Misses Ruth and Katherine McCall and Miss Rose Greely, daughter of the Admiral, met the "Devils" in the Governor's office. Governor McCall and Lieutenant Governor Coolidge both being in Northampton at the Smith commencement.

2 ALARMS IN WINTHROP FOR SMOKING CHIMNEY

Smoke issuing from the chimney of a thirty story building on Grand avenue, Winthrop Highlands, owned by Fred L. Hall of Winthrop, caused an excited soldier from Fort Banks, who was passing at an early hour today to ring in two alarms. The whole fire apparatus responded, but no fire could find no fire except smoke from a chimney caused by some one preparing for an early breakfast.

BIG WELCOME TO 'BLUE DEVILS' AT AYER

By WILLIAM FLYNN.

Camp Devens, June 13.—The cantonment was given over to the Alpine Chasseurs today. The "Blue Devils" of France arrived here shortly after noon and were welcomed by the officers and men of "Boston's Own." The French officers dined with the officers at division headquarters, and the enlisted Frenchmen had mess with the doughboys of "Boston's Own" and the "Old Colony" Regiments.

The Boston band heralded the arrival of the "Blue Devils" with the "Marseillaise," and after mess the Frenchmen wandered about the cantonment taking in the points of interest.

The visitors were impressed by the size of the cantonment and by the appearance and spirit of the New England draftees and the intensity of the training. Each of the "Blue Devils" was besieged with questions as to what "was doing over there" by groups of curious American soldiers seeking inside information as to what to expect when they cross the Atlantic. Several of the men in the Boston regiment speak French fluently and they were pressed into service as interpreters whenever a "doughboy" and a Frenchman reached a point in the conversation where they could not understand each other.

The promotions of three more second lieutenants, one a Boston man, to the rank of first lieutenant were announced at Division Headquarters today. They were: Lieutenants Frank W. Garran of No. 5 Euclid street, Boston; Edward F. Deacon of Detroit, Mich., and James R. Patterson of Pittsfield, all of whom were assigned to the 301st Engineer Regiment.

Major George M. Peck, adjutant of the Seventy-Sixth Division, has been named as a member of the board to examine chepiains, in the place made vacant by the transfer to Washington of Lieut.-Colonel Charles A. Romeyn, former acting inspector.

Sergeant Joseph L. Campbell of Buffalo, N. Y., a member of the Medical Detachment at the base hospital, has been commissioned a first lieutenant in the sanitary corps and transferred out of the cantonment. Second Lieutenant Robert Deming, division athletic officer, has also been promoted to the rank of first lieutenant upon special recommendation. He is a former Yale football star.

STALLINGS TALKS OF PENNANT

Braves Leader Says Wrecking of Club Alone Can Stop the Boston Team

By NICK FLATLEY.

If I can keep my present club intact, any team that can keep ahead of the Braves till the finish of this season will win the pennant. We will be right in there. There's no doubt about that.—Statement of Manager G. T. Stallings.

The Miracle Man of Boston, as Stallings has been called and expects to be again along about October, isn't much given to making optimistic prognostications. But he just couldn't help expressing himself of the foregoing this thirteenth day of June. He has the pennant fever once more, and has it bad.

UPHAM READY TO START.

Unless we lose a lot of our men right away, we can't help going good. We have the material and the spirit, and there's nothing more necessary. Our pitching right now is just as good as there is. We started the season in a bad way for pitchers, but things have changed. That's habit with the Braves. No matter what happens they always wind up with a great crowd of pitchers. We may be lucky, but we sure do manage to dig 'em up.

"Tom Hughes will be ready in a couple of days, just as good as ever. Fillingim has a sore arm, and hasn't all his stuff. But he is doing quite nicely as it is, thank you. Then you can't overlook this chap Upham. He's a big bird, and looks like a million dollars.

"The crazy to start him. He has showed me as much stuff in practice as Fillingim did. If he warms up right today, he goes in."

George T., now that his athletes are performing according to his approved ideas, has his usual, and of course logical, explanation of what happened when the Chicago Cubs marched into town and marched out again with four ball games.

"The team was nine miles up in the air. The players were all busy bringing home the bacon, here, and looking up homes. They didn't have their minds on baseball.

PERRY ADDED TO STAFF.

"Then, too, a couple of the players' wives were pretty sick, and that hurt. Even with that handicap we would have split the series had we enjoyed in the luck. We're back on earth, now, and playing our regular game."

The decision of the National Commission that awards Perry to the Braves gives the Miracle Man one more real pitcher that he can work with if he desires. The ubiquitous Scot has declared that he would not play with Boston, but such declarations don't amount to a pinch of snuff as a matter of fact.

The Braves right now have plenty of pitchers. Nehf, Hearne, Fillingim, Rudolph and Keagan are all in rare form, with Hughes and Upham in the immediate offing. Should Perry express any more unwillingness to report, he might be available as very good trading material.

Powell, Reng, Kelly and several other Braves will undoubtedly be called in the next draft, and consequently leave a few outfield holes that will require plugging up. But that little matter rests with the future, and just at present all is lovely up at the Home of Big Things

BIG BABE READY TO WALLOP WHITE SOX

Barrow Gives Star Hurler Day Off to Rest Up for Hard Battle

Chicago, June 13.—The impression grows that Ed Barrow knows a lot about running a ball club.

When he was appointed manager of the Red Sox at the behest and direct orders of Hon. Ban Johnson, a lot of folks arose and inquired: "What does Barrow know about running a ball club?" The answer is in the percentage tables.

Amongst other things he has been getting Babe Ruth in left field, Yesterday Ruth rested. Today he was in pitch. Yesterday the Red Sox trimmed Chicago, 7 to 6, with Mays pitching and Whiteman playing left field.

The Red Sox had little difficulty gaining the victory yesterday. Mays allowed only three hits and never was in danger. Danforth was picked in the second round for three wallops and two tallies. With one out, Scott singled, Schang fanned and Mays tried loose a triple. Carl scored on Hooper's safety.

These two would have been enough, but in the seventh Schang singled, Mays sacrificed, Hooper tripled and Shean bunted out a sacrifice fly, two more tallies coming in.

Just to make good, Ed Collins made a mess of Schang's grounder in the ninth. Then, after Mays laid down another sacrifice, Hooper and Shean singled and Whiteman doubled, and the net result was three tallies.

Wolfgang was pitching at this time. The White Sox used three hurlers, which is nothing unusual for them.

Corbett's Corner

This is the fifteenth of a series of articles which Mr. Corbett is writing concerning the career of the late Frank Gotch, who went to his grave the undefeated heavyweight wrestling champion of the world. The next instalment will appear tomorrow.

By JAMES J. CORBETT

After Frank Gotch defeated Stanislaus Zbyszko in June, 1910, he returned to his home in Iowa and rested up for a while. Then, harkening to the demand of the fans, he returned to the mat, making his "comeback" appearance on February 6, 1911, against a foreigner named Kalofosman. It was a "walkaway" for Gotch.

He had succession from then on until May 8 he defeated the following men, without losing a fall: Fred Beell (three times), American (twice), Peter Nogeth, Paul Schmidt, Ernest Koch, Harry Bann, Charles Cutler, Demetral, Tom Jenkins, Jack Leon, Henry Ordeman and Jesse Westergard.

And then came the second match with George Hackenschmidt, the "Russian Lion," one which ever since has left an unsavory taste in the mouths of many enthusiasts—but through no fault of the great American.

From that day in 1908, when Gotch defeated him right through until 1911, Hackenschmidt used the newspapers to voice the opinion that Gotch had won on a fluke, insisting that if he ever got another chance he would crush Gotch into something akin to lilac talcum powder. To all such statements Gotch would reply:

"If Hackenschmidt really wants to wrestle me I'll oblige him."

But through 1909 and 1910 the Russian seemed more interested in heckling Gotch through the newspapers than he did in attempting it on the mat. And the public came to believe he didn't have the courage to grapple again with his conqueror.

In 1910 Hackenschmidt returned to America, and some months later, through his manager, challenged Gotch.

The champion, eager to take another crack at the Russian in an attempt to avenge some of the blurs Hack had cast upon him, accepted.

The match was put on in the White Sox Park, in Chicago, on Labor Day (Sept. 4), 1911, before the greatest crowd that ever saw a wrestling contest in American history.

The bitter enmity between the two men, and the fact that they were supposed to be about evenly matched, lured grappling enthusiasts from all parts of the world. But the match resolved itself into what many have termed "the worst fiasco in wrestling history."

20,000 ON HAND FOR BATTLE.

The figures for the bout were: Attendance, 20,000; total receipts, $87,053. Gotch's share, $21,000 and 50 per cent. of the moving picture profits. Hackenschmidt, $12,500; Jack Curley, the promoter, received $29,987 as his "bit," while the Empire Athletic Club got $6,250, leaving the other $18,616 to defray expenses.

Many stories have been told concerning the "inside details" of the match. Most of them have it that Hackenschmidt showed a streak of yellow, and insist that when Gotch want after him in hammer and long, fashion the Russian, seeing he was hopelessly outclassed, quit at the first opportunity.

But the story that comes to me from George Bothner seems to be the fairest to all' concerned—and it's a recital that many who were "in on the know" have corroborated. So I shall give it here.

"Hackenschmidt hurt his leg while in training a few days before the contest," declares Bothner. "He then went to Jack Curley, the manager, and asked that the match be postponed until his leg got better. But just about that time a report had reached the Russian's camp that Gotch was suffering with a stiff or injured neck.

BOTH REPORTED CRIPPLED.

"This news was imparted to Hack and it was pointed out that although he did have a bad leg that handicap was offset by Gotch's bad neck, making it about 50-50.

"The promoters had risked a tremendous sum in staging the match and any postponement was almost sure to cause them a big loss—and also cut into the share for Hack.

"Realizing this and feeling that even with a bad leg he would have a chance with the 'stiff-necked' Gotch, the Russian decided to go on.

"Hack climbed into the ring with a bad leg, expecting to see Gotch ailing with a stiff neck. But one look at Gotch convinced the Russian that there was nothing wrong with the neck.

"And then Hack came to realize that he was up against it, and, I guess, lost confidence.

The match was nothing more nor less than a burlesque. The huge throng went there expecting to see a bitterly contested affair—and it was a fiasco.

It required less than twenty minutes for Gotch to gain both falls and so win the match.

Right from the outset Gotch, knowing that Hackenschmidt had a bad leg, began working his famous toe hold. He forced back the leg of Hack and the "Russian Lion" roared for mercy.

"Don't break my leg," he groaned.

Gotch sneered at Hackenschmidt, and pushed the leg still farther back. Then Hackenschmidt, in deep pain, turned a distorted face to Referee Ed Smith. The official interpreted it to mean that Hack wanted Gotch to release the hold.

"There will have to be a fall," shouted Smith, tossing over forward Hackenschmidt's ear.

Then Hack deliberately rolled over on his back, so as to save himself from further agony, and permitted the American to pin his shoulders to the canvas in the total time of two minutes 12 1-5 seconds for the first fall.

When they came out for the second bout it was evident that Hack was a broken man. Gotch lost but little time in attacking him and devoted all his effort trying to secure another toe hold.

He was successful at last, and by the use of it won the match by pinning the shoulders of Hackenschmidt to the canvas in 5 minutes 32 1-5 seconds, making the total wrestling time 19 minutes 50 2-5 seconds.

Johnson Has Habit of Shutting Out Red Sox

Walter Johnson considers that season an poorly spent if he does not score at least one shutout against the Boston Red Sox.

He started his 1918 campaign against the Sox by handing out a long string of ciphers, this being the eighth consecutive season in which Walter has rung up at least one shutout against the Hub representatives.

He started blanking the Beantown boys in 1907, his first year in the league, but the seasons of 1908-9-10 were unproductive.

In 1911 he resumed his whitewashing and no season has since gone by without at least one runless victory over the Red Sox for the Kansas Cyclone.

In 1913 he turned the trick twice and in 1914 three times, all the other seasons showing one shutout.

McKirdy likewise has several other spicy engagements in view and is almost sure to put on a windup number that will please the members of the West End fistic institution.

HARVARD — PENN BOTH CLAIM CREW TITLE

Merry Little Controversy Over Disposition of Rowing Honors Among Eastern Colleges

There's a merry little controversy over the disposition of rowing honors among eastern crews this season.

At Pennsylvania the claim is made that the Quakers have proven their superiority and if anybody is to get the laurels Penn should have them.

But at Cambridge, the Harvard adherents, fresh from their victory over Yale on the Housatonic, are making strong claims in behalf of the Crimson varsity as the premier crew of the season.

There is no doubt in the minds of more sober-minded critics of rowing that both Penn and Harvard have topnotch crews this year.

But just where to place the crown for the 1918 season is a question, though Penn's claims are somewhat stronger, on paper, at least.

Penn mowed four races, beating the Navy, Columbia, Princeton and Yale. Harvard rowed only two races, beating Princeton and Yale.

On the Severn, the Navy beat Penn and Columbia in the American regatta, and Navy supporters claim that victory wiped out Penn's former triumph to a certain extent, or at least evened matters up.

Yale lost to Penn and Harvard and Cornell started but once, being beaten by Princeton.

Princeton lost to Harvard, Penn and Columbia and therefore is counted out of the running for honors altogether, as is Syracuse, which entered only a freshman crew in this year's events.

So the controversy stands between Penn and Harvard, with the Navy given a loophole to make claims as well.

Regardless of championship claims from any direction the rowing season of 1918 proved a justification of the return of the sport, for it was, without a doubt, one of the most successful held in a good many years, and praise has been lavished upon it for over sixty years by colleges in this country.

"Arcturus and His Sons."

NEARLY overhead in the evening shines the great constellation Bootes, or the "Bear Driver," so called because the starry figure seems to chase the Great Bear around the North Pole. This is a very ancient constellation. Its chief star is the brilliant Arcturus.

CHAPTER II.

Copyright, 1913, by the Star Company.

A HALF HOUR passed before a footstep in the hall outside his office aroused Dr. Hale to an upright posture. He had been almost asleep. Perhaps this was a patient!

But the step passed on down the hall.

For three days now no patients had turned the knob of the door bearing in gilt letters the legend "Douglas Wade, M. D., Office Hours, 9:30 to 10:30 a. m.; 4:30 to 6 p. m."

He got up and began to walk up and down the office.

"Well," he muttered, "I am thankful that Elizabeth's check has gone to her so that she is safe for the next three months. She can go to the farm for the Summer more cheaply than anywhere else. If my bank account doesn't pick up by Fall, she may have to take to the stage to support me." He smiled whimsically at the idea. "Why under the sun doesn't Mrs. Butler decide to turn that delicate son of hers over to me for treatment?"

Continuing his pacing to and fro, he mused upon the case of John Butler as reported to him by his wealthy and widowed parent.

Mrs. Butler insisted that her son was suffering from some obscure disease. After his graduation from college he had taken a course at an agricultural school. Here he became so much absorbed in his work that he overtaxed his strength.

A spell of fever left him so weak that his mother had objected strenuously to his attempting any kind of labor, and as the months passed his nervousness increased. At last the family physician had ordered him West, and his mother had brought him to the "Rest Cure Sanitarium," situated on the outskirts of Riverhill.

Here they had been for months now, but John Hale was still languid and irritable. Mrs. Butler had taken a little cottage for the Summer in the town in order to be near her son. As soon as school closed her daughter would come on and join her here. But the invalid son was not cheered by the proximity of these members of his family.

This much Dr. Wade had learned from the mother's lips when he met her at a social function in the early Spring.

"I wish she'd let me handle that case!" Douglas Wade exclaimed now aloud.

He had of late acquired the habit of talking to himself in the solitudes of his office. "I believe it's an attack of too much mother, too much petting and too little work."

Wade had specialized in nervous diseases at the French University and longed to have John Butler in his charge. Perhaps the aspiring young physician appreciated what it would mean to him in this small town if he could cure this rich young man's obscure disease. In Riverhill there was already much comment on the case, for Mrs. Butler, fond of society, had been entertained by the best families in the community.

Wade did not want to be mercenary, but he found himself facing a crisis not only in his own life but in the life of the "little sister" to whom he was devoted and for whom he felt responsible. He recalled that she had said he was both mother and father to her now.

The sharp ring of the desk telephone made the physician start nervously. He was getting "jumpy," he decided, as he hurried to reply to it.

A woman's voice spoke his name. It was the woman of whom he had just been thinking, he realized with a thrill of gratification.

This Frees Your Skin From Hair or Fuzz

(Toilet Tips)

The method here suggested for the removal of superfluous hair is quick and certain, and unless the growth is extremely stubborn a single application does the work. Make a stiff paste with some powdered delatone and water; apply this to the hairy surface and after about 2 minutes rub it off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. To avoid disappointment, be sure your druggist sells you delatone.—Advertisement.

NEW SOCIAL LECTURE LEAGUE

"It reads like a Story Book," is the way one of America's most happily married society leaders opened the subject of her remarks on Hair Culture, at the first annual lecture of her newly inaugurated Course on Timely Topics at her home on the Hudson just outside of New York City.

"I have been a great outdoor enthusiast all my life and I make it a rule to do without my hat whenever possible, both in the daytime as well as evening. Jack, my husband, some years ago remarked that I would have to probably give up my running about bareheaded now that I was getting a bit gray. But I am not to be outdone simply by a few or many gray hairs. I went right to the most reliable authority I could get on the subject. The result was I avoided putting a lot of harmful dyes on my hair and I began using a Hair Color Restorer called Q-Ban and in no time Jack had to confess he didn't understand how my hair got so beautiful. Was I dressing it different, or what?

"You may rest assured I haven't told him anything about it, although he very often remarks my hair certainly does look fine. Q-Ban is our little secret."—Advertisement.

WAR WORK FOR WOMEN

Miss Ellam Explains How to Get Government Positions

By Elizabeth Ellam

SOMEONE has asked me to write an article bringing the matter of opportunities for women workers up to date. To tell them, in fact, what the chances are today for women in war industries—not what they were a few weeks ago. So, for that purpose, I have interviewed the United States Employment Service, at No. 130 Federal street, and the State Employment Bureau, at No. 8 Kneeland street.

Just at present there is a little slack in the demand for actual war workers, the workers for the munition factories. This—according to my information—happens once in a while. There is a lull in between times, followed always by a quickening of the demand again. This represents the lull.

There is a demand for women to take the place of men in machine shops. Although I do not know a monkey wrench from a steam shovel, I was offered a position in one of these factories today, to "learn the business." So there is an opportunity there for the woman who is not afraid of grease and grime, of overalls and sweat, of sooty nails and an aching back. She can become an apprentice, and she can eventually work up to a good wage.

The following letter I am printing, withholding the name. I will give it, and the address to any of my readers who can help this woman to the opportunity that she is looking for, if they will apply to me for it. It is the only way in which the letter can be answered.

Dear Miss Ellam:

I have been reading your letters and am wondering if you can help me. I am a young woman, 25 years old, with two children, one an eight-months-old baby, and the other, a three-year-old girl. I have also a young woman living with me, with a baby, six weeks old.

We both need money badly and have been looking the papers through for home work advertisements, but there seems to be nothing that we can do. We do not sew well enough for any outside work. I came from Providence and have had some work tinting cards and work from jewelry shops, putting on soft enamel and putting spring rings together. I have also clipped lace. I would be willing to learn anything, but can not remain away from home more than an hour at a time.

MRS. R. D.

Boston.

Will someone come to this woman's aid with a suggestion or an opportunity?

"MAYBE you don't think this would be a fine place to camp out, Fay, my girl!" said Travers.

"Well, it wouldn't do much good, if I did," returned Fay bitterly. "Did you notice how that snippy little daughter looked me over as if I were poison?"

"Well, you are to her sort! Now don't get excited over that, Fay. You just play your part right and little sister will be sorry she spoke. Be nice to the boy, though—he likes you, and you'll have a chance to pull some sweet maternal stuff with the crazy youngster. Did you see him gazing at you as if he wanted to learn you by heart? No getting away from it, little lady, the men fall for you."

"You think the boy's the father's favorite?" asked Fay.

"Sure thing—a crazy youngster like that is sure to get his dad right where he lives. That's your cue, Fay—make the youngster crazy about you. Perhaps he'll help to amuse you a bit when being an old man's darling is almost more of a bore than you can stand!"

Fay looked at Travers for a moment. Then she sneered to match his sneer. "And how about your starting something with little sister, I don't suppose you would object to that."

Travers was a good student of weather signs. He noticed the flash in Fay's eyes, the twitching of her nostrils and the tightening of the muscles in her jaw and throat. He leaned forward, caught Fay's hand and brushed his lips across it—a trick he had learned from his German friends in New York. The woman answered his caress eagerly—then leaped suddenly to her feet with a muttered "Be careful." And now—both arms outstretched and soft caresses in her very voice—she went forward to greet Waverly. Her attitude was a strange combination of feminine lure and maternal sweetness. It at once attracted and repelled the boy. He was terrified by the very strength of his own feelings and dizzy at the thought of the violent emotions his father's beautiful friend was stirring in him. But the woman insisted on holding his hand in hers and on drawing him over to the window seat, where she and "her brother" had been sitting a moment before.

The boy had not seen the telltale kiss, more and more he responded to the woman's gracious friendliness and when Covington came in a few moments later it was to greet a scene whose very pleasantness made him forget the indifference with which his other guests had met his suggestion that they meet the beautiful stranger.

"Put the tray here, Gibbs," ordered Covington. Then he turned to his guests. "I've brought you a drop of good cheer."

But the cheer was in his own heart. How motherly Miss Hope had been to her boy!

There were two glasses on the tray of wines which Covington's butler had carried to the cozy corner under the stairs where Fay Hope and Lucky Travers were hidden away from Beatrice's other guests.

"Don't you drink?" asked Fay.

"No, that doesn't mean that I disapprove, but merely that I discovered long ago that drink and I were better separated. You see, Miss Hope, a broker is called on to make a lot of quick decisions. It doesn't pay him to have his brain fuddled in even the least degree."

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

It Won't Do

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have a daughter, who isn't (nearly) twenty, going about with a young man one year her senior, calling him a very good friend. She intends going away with him on her vacation. Do you think she is doing right, without having a chaperon? I told her what I thought, but she won't listen to me. Your answer will be greatly appreciated.

ANXIOUS MOTHER.

DEAR lady, it cannot be done. At least it cannot be done by a girl to whom her good name and reputation mean anything. I am a bit surprised by the frequency with which this question is put to me. No girl can travel with a man to whom she is not married, nor yet related by ties of blood, and have the world respect her and accept her relations with that man as proper. I beg of your daughter to save herself from criticism (however undeserved in actual deed) and the appearance of evil by not breaking the laws of our modern world.

War Time Recipes

Tea Biscuits

Mix three cupfuls of flour with a teaspoonful and a half of baking-powder, a pinch of salt, and half a cupful of sugar. Rub into these three ounces of lard or margarine, and add a sprinkling of caraway seeds. Use milk to make a soft paste. Roll out to the thickness desired, usually about a quarter of an inch. Cut in rounds, and bake in a fairly quick oven for twenty minutes.

Baked Mackerel

Slit, clean, remove the head and tail from a medium-sized mackerel, put in a pan, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and dot with one tablespoonful of butter; pour out half a cupful of milk and bake in a hot oven for twenty-five minutes, basting. Remove to a hot platter, garnish with creamed, boiled onions and parsley. Serve very hot. Very small white onions should be used.

Last Monday a well-written letter, purporting to come from a soldier whose wife, the letter said, had been lured to marital disloyalty, was received by the clerk of the morals court, and it suggested that publicity was desired. INSPECTION OF AUTO BRAKES NEGLECTED

Manufacturers and Dealers Are Backing Big National Movement to Prevent Accidents

By C. F. DONNOCKER.

The brakes of an automobile are very important when needed and yet many drivers neglect to have them inspected at regular intervals.

Automobile manufacturers and dealers throughout the United States are backing a big national movement to establish brake inspection on cars and trucks of all types.

Although no national or State legislation has been passed to compel such inspection, on account of the fact that the entire idea is, as yet, in an embryonic state, car and truck owners everywhere are being urged upon voluntarily to support the movement in the hope that compulsory legislation will not be necessary.

An official of the Motor Truck Club of America says that 60 per cent. of the accidents caused by brake troubles could be avoided, if the proper inspection of brakes was made at least once each season.

H. F. Blanchard, of the Thermoid Rubber Company, Trenton, N. J., who has consulted with prominent police and insurance officials, says the movement will eliminate thousands of accidents, which are daily occurrences.

Every motorist is being urged upon to have his dealer inspect his brakes before the touring season opens. Truck brakes, in the opinion of one official, should be inspected at more frequent intervals. A seal is being devised which will be stamped on each date of inspection, on the car each time the brakes are inspected.

The assistance of the trade is being asked for the furtherance of the movement, since it is of vital importance to motorists in general. Police officials in different large cities are giving the movement their support.

The charges were made in connection with robberies committed at Gibbs' Dry Goods Store, Dedham, June 5. Nickerson is accused of the larceny of clothing valued at $60. Chief Shine said that Nickerson had admitted the thefts to him.

"How to Bring Up a Child"

Here's a Man Who Managed to Spare the Rod and Not Spoil the Child

Copyright, 1918, by the Star Company

The Editor:

Upon reading your editorial on "Child Beaters," it occurred to me that my experience in raising a child entirely by love may interest you.

When our only child was born, twenty-seven years ago, my wife and I agreed that our relations to him should be that of a big brother and a big sister, rather than the relation of parent and child.

During the first four years of his life we treated him lovingly though firmly. Whether well or ill, he never experienced the sensation of being walked or rocked to sleep, and he was never given any soothing potions. When it was bedtime he was put to bed and the light was put out whether he was awake or asleep. He was never humored or unduly petted.

During this period we travelled constantly. He learned table manners from the time he first took up a spoon. He was taught from the very beginning to accept what was given him, and he never learned to cry for anything. The consequence was that he never annoyed our fellow-guests at the hotel tables, but rather aroused their admiration and wonder.

As soon as he was old enough to be reasoned with, when about four years of age, he was given to understand why he could or could not do or have certain things. If, after reasoning it over, he persisted in having his way, especially as he grew older, he was permitted to do as he wished, with the usual result that later on he saw and acknowledged his error.

By thus constantly manifesting our interest and love toward him, and setting the right example by our attitude toward each other, my wife and I always had our son's complete love and confidence. He has never had the slightest occasion to deceive us, and he never did. HIS WHOLE LIFE, IN EVERY DETAIL, HAS ALWAYS BEEN AN OPEN BOOK TO US, AS OURS HAS BEEN TO HIM.

Before he became a man I taught him what a boy ought to know. The result was that he always abhorred bad talk, and, although he has since studied and worked and traveled in nearly every State in the Union, as well as abroad, and has lived and worked with all sorts and conditions of men, he has always kept himself spotlessly clean. Furthermore, he has often exerted an influence for cleanliness among others. Wherever he has studied or worked, whether in college or among foreigners, on a farm or in a factory, he always managed to surround himself with loving friends.

Whenever away from home, which has been almost constantly since his eighteenth year, he has been in daily communication with his parents. He would never permit anything to interfere with his daily task of writing us. We do the same in return.

The day when war was declared we agreed that he should immediately enter the army without awaiting a draft law. This he did. He has since passed through a training camp and has won an officer's commission. Whether he remains in this country or is sent abroad, we have no fear that any harm will come to him, other than the honor of being injured in defence of his country, and we know that while he lives he will exert an influence for good among his fellow-soldiers.

There is nothing in his character or in his past life which my wife or I would change if we had the power.

This is not all. I have managed playgrounds, I have camped with boys, I have presided over an amateur baseball league and managed baseball teams, I have taught Sunday school classes among the well-to-do and among the very poor, from a handful to over thirty in a class, and I have never failed to maintain order and to win the respect and love of all the children and young people that I have ever had any dealings with. I have never had occasion to be harsh, and very seldom had to use the expression "Don't." I always studied the children and learned to think their thoughts and to speak their language, and by combining this knowledge with a constant manifestation of love I have had no difficulty in conquering the most unruly. Very truly yours, A PARENT.

To Enlist Help for Farmers

The Federal Government has recognized the fact that this paper was the first in Boston to open its columns to the United States Employment Service by appointing the Boston AMERICAN as Farm Labor Agency No. 107 to represent in this section the efforts of the Department of Labor to create a war emergency reserve for labor upon the farms this Summer and Autumn.

The AMERICAN has accepted the task with pleasure, and will continue to do its utmost to induce its readers, of all ages and both sexes, to do their bit toward making good the serious shortage of labor in Massachusetts market-gardens and farms.

MISGUIDED GIRLS PAY THE BILLS ALWAYS

By Winifred Black

THE Professor had been talking for a long time, and all at once he stopped preaching and began to practice. And, dear me, what a difference it does make!

I really do not quite approve of what the Professor has done, but I cannot help being rather sorry for him just the same—he must be so puzzled to see what a difference it makes to practice instead of preach.

The Professor had been respectable and highly respected for years. He has had classes in sociology, psychology and other subjects in several universities.

Some of the old fogies of the faculties among the different universities didn't quite approve of everything the Professor said, but he was "modern" and "radical," and they were afraid that if they said much he would call them "reactionary" and "conservative," and no human being can stand the stain of these accusations in these days and live.

So they let him go on preaching in defiance of the law and in contempt of the sacraments, and the young man and young woman who attended his classes had glorious times telling each other what old-fashioned people their mothers and fathers were and how glad they were that they themselves had been born old enough to belong to the new order of Free and Independent souls.

Preaching and Practising

Some of them took the Professor very seriously and wanted to live the "New Freedom," but generally, when one of the boys wanted to be free, he fell in love with a girl who did not want to be "free" at all, and so he was saved much trouble and a lot of disgrace.

And when one of the girls made up her mind that she was not going to be tied down by the conventions any longer, the boy she said it to said "Yes!" and went right out and got a marriage license and a preacher, and that was the end of the "New Freedom" for that particular girl.

So the Professor's preaching didn't do quite as much harm as it might have, but all at once, when the Professor was over fifty years of age, he suddenly thought he would practice what he preached.

And he did! He ran away with a charming young woman and never even said "Au revoir" to his perfectly good and perfectly devoted wife, who had brought up his family, and mended his socks and kept his bills paid and sorted his laundry and listened to his long dissertations on "Freedom" without a smile for years.

Paying the Bill

The girl's parents had the Professor arrested and the Professor's wife went and brought the girl home and took care of her, for she was very much upset by the publicity of the whole affair.

And now the Professor is looking for a job and the girl is going to go away with her parents and begin life over again somewhere where there are no professors to talk about "Larger Freedom."

When will girls begin really to understand that the bill is always presented to Them—in the end—no matter who promised to settle it in the beginning?

Praises Boston American Farm Labor Agency

The following letter has been received from the United States Department of Labor:

Boston AMERICAN,
Farm Labor Agency 107,
Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen—This service is in receipt of clippings from the AMERICAN of June 4 to 7, inclusive, in reference to the Co-operative Farm Labor Agency.

Your publicity campaign for the purpose of stimulating interest in farm work exhibits the proper spirit, and it is desired to commend you for your efforts. It is highly pleasing also to note that something has already been accomplished in this way in the actual placement of men on the farms—the best evidence of this movement.

SACKCLOTH AND ASHES PASSING AWAY

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

SORROW comes to all. Bereavement is the common lot. And we manifest it very largely according to our individual temperaments and the customs in which we have been reared.

The philosopher Blon observed cynically of the king who was tearing his hair out by handfuls: "Does this man think that baldness is a remedy for grief?" Yet the monarch was merely conforming to the proprieties of an exotic age. It was once as much de rigueur to sit in sackcloth and ashes as it is today to wear black gloves at a funeral.

In ordinary times I have no quarrel with black crepe. For myself I have always eschewed it, yet I concede the perfect right of those to whom the wearing of it serves as a consolation, or who prefer to abide by the settled convention.

But these are not ordinary times. The great duty of today is to maintain a spirit of cheery optimism and courage, and so help to preserve the morale of our armies in the field and of the nation as a whole. The mourners must not go about the streets.

New Independence

The psychological effect of mourning is depressing, and the world today needs all the hope and all the sunshine that we can give it. Let us follow the gallant example of the women of England who rather than obtrude their private sorows upon the national consciousness—and scarcely a home there has been left untouched—have practically discarded the suits and trappings of woe.

Very wisely our government has recommended for those whose sons or brothers fall in the service the wearing only of a simple mourning band bearing a star like those upon the service flag for each relative lost—a badge of honor and a tribute to those gone, than which nothing more is required.

Would it not be a good thing if the same idea were carried into general practice? During such a crisis as the present, does not elaborate mourning savor almost as much of ostentation and bad taste as an over-display of jewels or sybaritic luxury.

And even more important is it to preserve a feeling of confidence and composure concerning those who are on the battle line.

I would not for a moment minimize the risks and hazards and hardships which our boys are so dauntlessly facing. But it is no forlorn hope upon which they are engaged, no Thermopylae or Little Big Horn. The great majority will come back with waving banners to receive the proud and grateful acclaim of the nation.

Certainly gloomy prognostications and headshakes will not help them in what they have to do. They themselves are meeting the ordeal in no such tearful trepidation, but with eager heroism—a song on their lips and a light in their eyes—and with unshakable confidence in victory.

There will be casualties, alas! But there is no need to anticipate disaster, no need to stir the hearts of wives and mothers and sweethearts already overburdened with anxiety by dwelling upon dangers and indulging in morbid imaginings.

This is a War for Civilization; and Civilization is restraint. The nation has uncomplainingly accepted the burdens and restrictions imposed by our entrance into the war, and our young manhood without a murmur has subjected itself to the rigorous discipline of the training camps and the hazards of the battlefield. Can we not match their fortitude by curbing our apprehensive impulses and helping to maintain a spirit of public cheer and confidence?

A Real Patriot

A young girl with a brother at the front, to whom she is devoted, has been trying to keep a brave front to the world. Many a night she has cried herself to sleep since his departure, but not even to the members of her own family will she confess how deeply she is affected.
